All Sorts of Small News
Ladies Gone, Dividends High
Colleges Wet, Senate Dry
Stop and Count Three

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1926, by Star Company)

ALL SORTS of little news, nothing VERY important on the surface. But, sometimes, days that seem dull, as you pass through them, become important later.

On a certain fourteenth of July, you remember, the French King, Louis Sixteenth, went hunting, got no game and wrote in his diary one word, "rien," which means "nothing." On that same day the Bastile was torn down, which meant that Louis' head was to be chopped off a little later.

THE MAIN THING is to make it short, which few men find easy. Hanging in his playhouse elevator, William A. Brady has this wise word, in smallest type:

"The more you say, the less people remember."

MONEY WAS CHEAP again yesterday, only 3½ per cent., if you wanted it for stock gambling, more if you wanted to build a house. Stocks were cheerful and up. New dividends were declared by stocks that paid none before, bigger dividends by those with the dividend habit.

NEW YORK'S old-fashioned Fifth Avenue Bank, on the corner of Forty-fourth street, paid its usual dividend yesterday at the rate of 24 per cent., and an extra dividend of 26 per cent., for the quarter. A good, fair return on your money.

That little bank was started, as old gentlemen remember, that a few select ladies, lunching across the street at Delmonico's, might combine banking with luncheon. Delmonico's is gone, the ladies are gone, the bank pays more than 50 per cent. a year.

PROHIBITION NEWS is varied.

American colleges are overwhelmingly wet. Of 7,311 students voting, 92 per cent. want the law changed. College boys, "unfortunately," know a good deal

1—More than 500 persons were added to the lists of other thousands out of employment in the city.

2—Rigid investigation of the causes of the blaze was begun under the direction of State Fire Marshal George C. Neal.

3—Fire Marshal Neal sharply criticised the legislature for failure to act on his advice regarding fire hazards in mercantile establishments.

ATTACHES UNHURT IN U. S. LEGATION BLAST

Montevideo, June 4 (I.N.S.).—The United States Legation was bombed here today.

The bomb, which had been placed in the doorway of the Legation, was exploded at 3 a. m.

The ceiling to the entrance hall, under the office of the American minister, U. Grant-Smith, was demolished, the bomb apparently having been one of great power.

The police have the case in hand. This is the second instance of bomb attacks upon American legations in South America within a few weeks.

FULLER BACKS SOLDIER TRAINING IN CADET TALK

Governor Fuller shattered the equanimity of pacifists today by reading from the brilliant parade of 8,000 Boston high school cadets a lesson in the value of military training in schools.

"I can well imagine these young soldiers as guarantees of peace, yet willing and prepared to serve their country well in the hour of need," declared the Governor in an enthusiastic message of approbation addressed to the cadets' commandant.

"Please accept hearty congratulations, for I am sure these boys have learned the need of discipline and absorbed the spirit of co-operation," he wrote to Lieutenant-Colonel Charles A. Ranlett, sending with his letter a bouquet of roses in his enthusiasm.

Marching to the music of their bands, the 8,000 school cadets paraded through the principal streets to City Hall and then to the State House, being reviewed by Mayor

COLLEGE 'RUM TRAP' GETS 2

Worcester, June 4.—When a trap to catch liquor thieves was sprung in the chemical laboratory of Clark University today, two young students were captured carrying an empty gallon can.

The police allege they were headed straight for the stock of alcohol.

The capture is expected to result in further arrests and explanation of mysterious thefts that have made deep inroads into the college supply.

AUTO HITS BABY, MOTHER; FLEES

A mother and her baby were knocked down, dragged thirty feet and injured today in Thomas Park, South Boston, by an autoist who sped away from the scene of the accident, leaving them helpless in the street.

The heroism of the mother, Mrs. Maria A. O'Connor, No. 20 Telegraph street, in trying to save the child resulted in her injuries.

She was wheeling her thirteen-months-old boy, John, in his carriage when the automobile crashed into the side of the carriage, spinning it around, toppling it over and dragging it along the street.

The mother tried to keep the carriage upright and held on to it tightly, being dragged along herself as a result. The baby was prevented from falling out by a strap.

The child received severe bruises of the head and Mrs. O'Connor suffered a sprained back.

DUDLEY ST. STATION OFFICERS ACCUSED OF ACCEPTING 'GIFTS'

Patrolmen John Cullinane and Arthur O'Shea of the Dudley street police station were indicted today by the Suffolk Grand Jury in its "take the rap" probe.

The new indictments, returned to Judge Fosdick in Superior Court, bring the total of persons indicted in connection with the investigation up to nine, including five policemen.

Arthur O'Shea

Policemen Cullinane and O'Shea are charged, in six counts each, with requesting and accepting gratuities and gifts in 1924, 1925 and 1926. A lawyer is understood to be involved.

Half a dozen hours of taking testimony and deliberating were consumed by the Grand Jury today before the indictments were returned and the jury was excused until Monday.

When the Grand Jury resumed its probe today in special session, Nathan Ullian, a Tremont street lawyer, and Captain George Patterson, head of the liquor and vice squads, were called as witnesses.

Captain Patterson, with a sheaf of papers, followed Ullian into the Grand Jury room and remained less than ten minutes.

The lawyer, however, made two

FILM OPERATOR DIES IN SOMERVILLE FIRE

Peter Neary of No. 63 Jackson street, Lawrence, a movie operator in the Olympia Theatre, Day street, Somerville, died today in Somerville hospital of burns received when a film exploded in the projection booth, while 700 patrons filled the theatre.

Enveloped in flame, Neary collapsed of burns and heat, while Albert Gionet, No. 51 Dudley street, Cambridge, substitute pianist, with remarkable presence of mind and grit, played the national anthem, bringing the crowd to its feet and dispelling the first impulse of fear.

Neary lay in a corner of the booth until firemen arrived and dragged his body from the box-like room.

Quieted by Gionet's playing, the crowd filed out of the theatre in orderly fashion, when requested to by theatre employes under the direction of Manager W. H. Decotreau.

The work of rescuing Neary from the burning booth was directed by District Fire Chief Hathaway. Two other firemen crawled into the booth on hands and knees and dragged out the prostrate form. After waiting 25 minutes for a police ambulance, firemen rushed Neary to the hospital in a fire truck. Neary suffered burns about the head, face and body.

State investigators today began a probe to determine the cause of the explosion.

KILLS CRIPPLED WIFE AND SON AND DIES

Lansdale, Pa., June 4 (A.P.).—Robert Norton Hill, 50, sent a special delivery note to the police here today, then killed his 20-year-old crippled son, beat in the skull of his wife, also a cripple, and committed suicide.

His victims were Mrs. Lillian M. Hill, 45, said to be fatally injured, and Paul Hill, shot and beaten to death. Hill himself was found in the cellar of his home. His wrists were slashed and he had fired a bullet through his mouth into his brain.

A note was found reading: "Notify F. W. Hill, Toronto, Ont., and Mrs. M. M. Morris, 157 High street, Southampton, Mass." The former is said to be Hill's brother and the latter a sister-in-law.

HOUSE PASSES BILL FOR CAPE CANAL PURCHASE

Washington, June 4 (A.P.).—The $36,000,000 Omnibus Rivers and Harbors Bill was passed today by the House and sent to the Senate.

Surviving a fight that kept the House in turmoil for many hours and held it in session most of last night, the measure finally came through the deciding roll call with all its major features unscathed. The final vote was 219 to 127.

The prospects for passage in the Senate at this session, however, are problematical.

As approved, the bill contains all of the fighting items, including the Illinois River project, the all-American canal survey for New York State, purchase of the Cape Cod canal and an authorization for survey of the upper Missouri River.

BIG FIRE ADDS TO LIST OF IDLE IN LOWELL

4—Checkup on fire prevention measures in scores of Lowell business blocks expected to materialize from the investigation.

The loss by the fire was set by insurance adjusters at $1,500,000. Temporary plans for reconstruction call for a new department store on the same site but erection of a Masonic building at a new location outside the business district.

Water was still being poured on the ruins today as the investigation of the cause was begun and Building Inspector John E. Moynahan was preparing to have the skeletons of the structures demolished because of the danger of collapsing.

Police kept the public back from the buildings, all located on the block bordered by Merrimac, Palmer and Middle streets, the only building on the block untouched by the fire being the Middlesex Savings Bank.

Reports were current that fire doors in some of the buildings were open when the fire started, accounting for the amazingly rapid spread of the flames.

"Some of the men sent to the Legislature ought to be thrashed for wasting time on picayune savings while allowing these big fires to occur," declared State Marshal Neal, in commenting on the fire.

"I inspected the burned Lowell buildings five years ago and one of them I found the worst I had ever been in. I then made a report to the Legislature with special mention of conditions in Lowell, recommending that laws be passed to require sprinklers in mercantile establishments, especially in basements, but the Legislature reported that Legislation was unnecessary.

"At that time I also called the attention of the Lowell Mayor and Chamber of Commerce to conditions and arranged a conference with the owner of the building in question, but he did not show up and the conference never took place. By law I was, and am, powerless."

Loss of life was only averted, in the opinion of fire department officials, by the fact that the fire came near the close of a half-holiday when the store was empty. The fire spread so rapidly that it is considered doubtful if all of the many girl employes could have escaped.

Before the blaze was finally placed under control aid had been called from Lawrence, Dracut, Billerica, Chelmsford and Tewksbury. Four Lowell firemen, a Lawrence fireman and an army recruiting sergeant were injured.

Discovered in the basement of a four-story building occupied by the Pollard Company, the flames spread so rapidly that a general alarm was immediately ordered by Chief E. F. Saunders. With a stiff breeze blowing blazing embers were carried long distances, causing three other fires and hampering the work of the firemen.

The Pollard Company occupied four buildings, all of which were destroyed. Two of these buildings faced Merrimac street and two faced Middle street. The Masonic Temple fronted on Merrimac street. It was the last building to catch, but it went with a roar when once ignited. Members of the Knights Templars lost valuable regalia.

The fight was organized on four sides at once, though for some hours the heavy streams of water appeared to have no effect on the blaze.

Aid was quickly forthcoming from the surrounding towns and cities when appealed to. The Lowell firemen conducted the fight mainly from outside the buildings, as the heat was too intense for them to enter. The spread of the flames was enhanced by numerous doors in fire walls, which proved excellent channels for the fire.

Lowell firemen injured by glass when windows blew out were: Lieutenant Edward Welch, Lieutenant Joseph Fontaine, Hoseman Michael Slattery and Arthur McLaughlin. Sergeant Timothy Kimball of the U. S. army was also cut by glass. The Lawrence fireman injured was Hoseman Fred Farrell, whose hand was fractured when an unruly hose nozzle crushed it against the pavement.

youths were caught in the laboratory one of them was released and the other charged with carrying a gun without a permit and operating an automobile under the influence of liquor. His name was given by the police as John L. Peters, 23, of Holliston.

Peters was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction later in district court onthe charge of carrying a gun. He appealed. The other charges were dismissed. Willis M. Lester, another student, was a witness put on the stand by the police but he declared he did not see Peters draw a gun in the laboratory.

Acting on a mysterious tip, Professor Benjamin S. Merigold of the chemistry department with Sergeant Stephen R. Moriarty of the Worcester police hid in the laboratory early today waiting for the expected raid.

Their patience was rewarded when a key turned in the lock and the door opened.

The watchers waited for the youths to head for the alcohol supply and they were discovered when a flashlight picked them up.

The gallon can one of them carried dropped to the floor and the two students stood in astonishment.

MOVE TO DISBAR 6 ATTORNEYS

Judge Crosby of the Supreme Court has designated Rufus B. Dodge of Worcester to conduct proceedings on the petition of W. Edwin Ulmer, asking for the disbarment of Attorneys Charles P. Curtis, Jr., of Boston, Harry G. Sleeper of Natick, George M. Poland and Loring P. Jordan, both of Wakefield, Francis G. Goodale of Weston and Clarence A. Barnes of Mansfield.

Mr. Ulmer alleges a conspiracy on the part of the defendants to ruin him in the profession of law, and charges that they have been guilty of deceit, malpractice and other gross misconduct in litigation arising out of the estate of the late Edmund Wood of Natick and the business of the Henry Woods Sons' Co. and the Waban Conservatories.

One of the acts complained of by Mr. Ulmer is that the respondents secured a decree in the United States Court, disbarring him from acting as an attorney in that court, when, in fact, he never was a member of the bar of the United States Court.

A fluffy bit of pale pink and green appeared in the Mayor's review stand as the column swung by. It was Marjorie Nichols, only three, but the "First Lady of Boston." The crowd smiled a tribute to her.

Mayor Nichols, heartened by the news that his son Dexter had just recovered from a long illness, watched the parade with interest. Another son, Clark S. Nichols, stood beside his father in the stand.

At a luncheon for the school musicians from Martin School, Roxbury, and Richard Olney School, West Roxbury, in the basement of City Hall, Marjorie was presented by Mayor Nichols. He said: "I take great pleasure in introducing to you a young lady whom I hope in a few years will be among you."

The combined bands serenaded the mayor's party, after which the mayor delivered an address. Following the luncheon, the mayor gave another luncheon to the High School Cadet Field Officers at Hotel Kenmore.

The parade led by a platoon of mounted police, started at English High School and swung through Clarendon street, down Columbus avenue into Park Square and thence to Boylston and Tremont streets. Leaving the City Hall the Cadets marched up Beacon street to the State House.

Reporters Find Stern Police Head's Gentler Side In Girl Case

Over in the old cove section they'd nod understandingly if you told them Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley had a kindly heart thumping beneath his galluses, but in case you didn't know it yourself reporters discovered today the story of the girl who wanted to do right—

And the girl who did, under the personal direction of Mike Crowley of the old Baker's Dozen, who never would even throw rocks at a cat.

A little note came into the office of the superintendent today, a somewhat delirious note that spoke of happiness and all that.

SENT TO SHERBORN.

The superintendent was reluctant to give the reason for the feminine missive, but he admitted at last that it was a little private benefaction of his own that had led a Boston girl to the straight road, had smoothed the way for her and had made a happy marriage possible.

Some time ago this girl, only a youngster as girls of her kind go, was not quite fast enough for the policeman on the beat, got caught and was sentenced to Sherborn.

Up to that time life had been very easy, but the term at Sherborn set her thinking when she came out. She went directly to Supt. Crowley, cried some and told him she wanted to do right. He encouraged her and told her she would not be molested while she did.

A little later she visited him again, discouraged. She had had several positions, but each employer, on discovering her past and her Sherborn tenancy, had discharged her.

That riled the Superintendent not a little and he quietly found a position for her, called in the employer, told him the whole story and asked him how his heart was.

HE'S A CUPID, TOO.

The two men looked into each other's eyes; then they shook hands—and the girl entered heartily into her work.

Another visit to "Mike" Crowley's office. This time she told him sadly that a man proposed to her but that she had put him off—well, because.

"Bring him to me," ordered the police head, and when the swain had been led in, "Mike" told him, too, the entire story of the girl's few years of carelessness, of her seeing the light and of her attempt to live down the black months. The girl sat silently by, gazing through the window into Pemberton square, but her hands, hidden in her lap, wrung at her tiny handkerchief.

When the Superintendent had finished, the man rose, stepped over to the girl, lifted up her chin and kissed her tear-wet cheek. Then he turned back to Crowley, but the broad back of the Superintendent was hunched over a bit of furious writing that looked suspiciously like a jumbled repetition of:

"The quick brown fox jumped over the life of the party; now is the time for all good dogs to come to the aid of the fox, 2x2-toot toot."

TRIAL SEPARATIONS FAVORED BY HER

Placing the social seal on trial separations, Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt, Boston and Newport matron, is preparing to return to Newport for a "delightful Summer with her husband." She went to Paris and he journeyed to California when matters were not running smoothly in the Vanderbilt home, according to the society hostess.

'PICTURESQUE LIES,' SAYS JUDGE

What Judge Arthur P. Stone alleged to have been "a story of two men with two women at a club, and both drinking," wase limaxed today in East Cambridge court when Malcolm A. Martin, Boston University graduate of Jamaica Plain, was fined $50.

Martin, twenty-two, and an insurance agent living in Everett street, was charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, and was accused by the judge of telling "picturesque lies" when he declared he had not been drinking and was only playing "Good Samaritan."

KNOWS WHAT HAPPENS.

"If you think that because a judge sits in court all day hed oesn't know what happens outside, you are mistaken," said Judge Stonep ointedly, and also warmly.

"I would have more respect for a man who told the truth, the real story of the happening, than you with your picturesque lies."

Martin was chased in the Brattle square section of Cambridge by Motorcycle Officer Henry E. Pelletier, who testified that the erratic driving of the car first attracted his attention to it.

As soon as Pelletier pulled up on the driver's side of the machine, he said, the odor of liquor from Martin's breath was apparent, and he was placed under arrest.

Martin, in his own defence, denied he had been drinking. He said he had been at the Fraternities Club, a Boston University resident fraternity house, where liquor was not permitted and girls were not allowed above the first floor.

Engaged in a peaceful bridge game, Martin said, he was interrupted when a man friend, unnamed, entered with two girls. The man had been drinking and asked Martin if he would drive the trio home.

Martin agree, he said, took them home to Belmont and was returning through Cambridge when he was picked up by the motorcycle officer, who must have smelled liquor from the aroma left by the friend. Judge Stone imposed the $50 fine on Martin, which he appealed.

DECISION RESERVED IN CHASE SECURITIES SUIT

White Plains, N. Y., June 4 (A. P.).—Supreme Court Justice Young reserved decision today on a plea made by the Chase Securities Corporation to dismiss a complaint in an action brought against it by Nicholas Weber, an independent stockholder of the General Baking Company.

In reserving decision, Justice Young said, "assuming that Ward has been as crooked as is alleged, it appears to me that the Chase Securities Corporation has no part in this dispute." Attorney said $7,500,000 in stock had been placed with the Chase National Bank as collateral on a loan made by W. B. Ward.

2 AUTO THEFT SUSPECTS HELD IN $10,000 BAIL

Bion Humphries and Walte. Wood, arrested at No. 443 Shawmut avenue, were in the Municipal Court today on charges of larceny of two cars and also for two breaks, one in North Acton and the other in East Burte. Both pleaded not guilty, but were held in $10,000 for trial.

CARROLL 'FREE' FOR MONTHS

New York, June 4 (I.N.S.).—Earl Carroll, Broadway theatrical producer, will not go to Atlanta to serve his prison sentence until Christmas, if then, in the opinion of lawyers.

Carroll was sentenced to a year and a day and fined $2,000 for perjury before the Federal Grand Jury that investigated the serving of liquor at Carroll's "bath tub party" at his theatre on February 22.

Carroll's lawyer is to take the producer's appeal to the Circuit Court, but it is regarded as likely that when the October term begins press of business will be so heavy the case will not be reached until November. Then there is the customary lapse of about a month between argument and the decision of the court.

HUBBY'S EQUAL RIGHT UPHELD

A husband who turns his own and his wife's earnings into a common fund or trust for joint benefit, may recover his half interest, including real estate interest, the full bench of the Supreme Court ruled today.

The opinion, written by Judge Carroll, was in the case of John J. O'Brien and his wife, Alice.

"A resulting trust may be established between husband and wife," the opinion said, "and property standing in the name of the wife may be recovered by the husband if he proves he furnished the entire consideration or a specific part and that it was not intended by way of gift, settlement or advancement."

AMBULANCE IS JINXED; 2 HURT

The ambulance of the Athens street police station started for the Relief Hospital with one person today, but when it arrived at the hospital there were two accident victims aboard and the ambulance itself had been smashed.

John Minehan, thirty, of No. 120 Salem street, Malden, was injured by an elevator door in the building at No. 327A street, South Boston, and the ambulance was rushing him to the hospital.

At Congress and A streets a flivver crashed into the ambulance, wrecking the flivver and hurling Alphonse Choinsard of Danvers, through the windshield.

Dragging Choinsard out of the wreckage, the police laid him alongside of Minehan and the battered ambulance proceeded to the hospital.

Minehan's name was placed on the danger list. Choinsard suffered from cuts.

CLEAR BENNETT OF ROBBERY

Joseph Bennett, who was acquitted by a Middlesex county jury of murder in the first degree in the carbarn robbery at Waltham, was today found not guilty by a Suffolk county jury on a charge of robbery.

The crime occurred on March 31, when Donald I. Petts and a man named Hurwitz were held up in a gasoline station at Brighton. Hurwitz at no time was sure that Bennett was one of the robbers, and today Petts told the jury the same thing.

RIFT ENDED BY VANDERBILTS

Paris, June 4 (Universal).—Trial separations as shock absorbers for marital differences are now ultrafashionable. The smart set seal, in fact, has been placed upon them by Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt, whose marital vacation from Louisburg square, Boston, and Newport, R. I., is drawing to a successful ending.

Before the end of this month Mrs. Vanderbilt will return to America and spend the Summer at Newport with her husband, thus setting at rest once for all the rumors of an approaching divorce which have been freely circulated on both sides of the Atlantic for some time back.

"I will not deny," Mrs. Vanderbilt is said to have told a friend last week, "that all was not well in our household, I believe it is impossible for any couple to go through life without occasional clouds, but it certainly seems hasty to rush to the divorce courts without a previous trial separation.

"So far as we are concerned, my husband went to California and I came to Paris. A few weeks in this pleasurable city convinced me of the pettiness of our differences. Travel—especially foreign travel—gives one the right perspective Women should resort to travel before taking hasty action."

500 VOLTS KILL MAN AT WORK

Herman Borugstrom, 35, of No. 86 Lake street, Arlington, was electrocuted today by a charge of 500 volts that shot through his body from a machine in the Barbour, Stockwell Company Foundry, No. 205 Broadway, Cambridge.

He died instandly, in the opinion of Medical Examiner David Dow. There was no flash to warn other employes of the accident, and it was several minutes before they saw Borugstrum's body on the floor.

Borugstrom had been working at a grinding machine.

MOTHER, 57, ILL TRIES TO DIE

Despondent because of ill health, according to her daughter, Mrs. Jennie Hoffman, 57, drank poison today in her home in Putnam street, East Boston. She was taken to East Boston Relief Hospital and treated by Dr. Reynolds. Her name is on the danger list. Miss Alphea Hoffman told the police her mother has been ill for a long time.

PIANIST PROVES REAL HERO AS DEATH STAGES OWN THRILLER AT THE MOVIES

SOME THRILL!

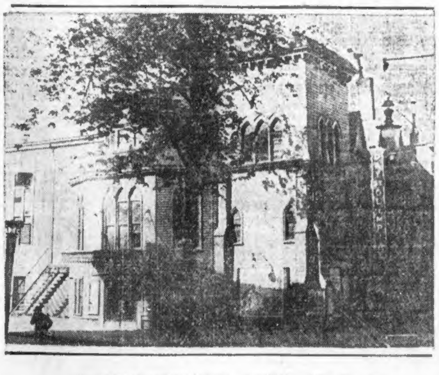
JUST LIKE A MOVIE HERO
Albert Gironet, plucky pianist in theatre, who calmed audience and averted panic by playing national anthem when film exploded in crowded resort. Quieted by Gironet's music, the 700 persons present filed out of the building without any mishap.



OLYMPIA THEATRE, SCENE OF BLAST
It was in this amusement resort that Peter Neary, movie operator, was fatally hurt when a film ignited and exploded in his box-like operating booth. Neary dropped unconscious when the blast came and was dragged from the blazing booth by firemen, who staged a stunt that out-thrilled the movies themselves.

FLED FLAMES
Florence Crandall, No. 10 Thorndyke street, Somerville, another spectator who escaped as fire menaced audience in movie house.

'SHADOW' BABY DIES BUT NOT FROM SUNBATH

New Orleans, June 4.—Alton Lindsey, the 5-year-old "shadow baby" of Fluker, La., who has puzzled science during his entire lifetime by inability to stand sunlight, died in Charity Hospital. Strangely enough, it was not the sun which caused his death, but scalds received when he pulled over a kettle of boiling water.

The child, doctors decided, was the victim of xeroderma pigmentosa, a rare disease.

BORAH DEMANDS FACTS ON BRITISH IN PANAMA

Washington, June 4 (I.N.S.).—A resolution asking for all official information on the reported purchase by British interest of rubber concessions in Panama was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Borah.

It requests Departments of State and War to reveal all correspondence on the reported attempts of Great Britain to "gain control of the natural resources" of Panama. Senator Curtis (R.) of Kansas asked that action on the resolution be postponed until tomorrow.

Hops Again Tomorrow

San Juan, Porto Rico, June 4 (A.P.).—Bernardo Duggan, Argentine sportsman, plans to leave on the next lap of his flight from New York to Buenos Aires tomorrow. He will fly to Martinique for gasoline and thence to Trinidad.

ARREST MAN WITH $400 IN JEWELRY

Andrew Johnson, twenty-four, of Castle street, South End, was arrested as he jumped from a Vermont milk train at the Waltham depot. He is charged with larceny of jewelry valued at more than $400 found on him.

He was held in bail of $5,000 in Waltham District Court and his case continued until June 11. His actions at the railroad station attracted the attention of Officer Morgan and led to his arrest. Police are attempting to trace the owners of the jewels.

about prohibition and bootleg whiskey.

THE SENATE Judiciary Committee scornfully rejects the suggestion of a prohibition referendum. "The Fathers never intended that any Constitutional question should be referred to a popular vote."

THAT'S LIKELY. Those dear old Fathers had no high opinion of the average man. They would not let him vote unless he owned a certain amount of property. And he could not vote for President or Senator. He could only choose superior minds to do that for him.

The people have changed that, and may change other things. They even have power to enlighten the Senate Judiciary Committee.

WHEN YOU are excited stop and count at least three. If angry, count ten.

George Koskoza hanged himself by the neck, outside a window three stories up. A friend could not see a man die like that, so he cut the rope. But he forgot to pull his friend, Koskoza, inside the window. Koskoza dropped three stories and will die.

MR. CARROLL, who hired a girl of seventeen to appear naked in a bathtub partly filled with alleged champagne, is fined $2,000 and sent to prison for one year.

But he is punished for lying to the Grand Jury, not for outraging public decency and contributing to the degradation of a seventeen-year-old girl. This is a queer civilization.

WOMEN'S CLUBS at Atlantic City protest against woman's craze for unnatural thinness, causing many to starve themselves to the danger point.

WOMEN WILL PAY no attention, of course, but it is a useful suggestion. Future generations will feel the bad effects of a generation of skinny mothers, and also feel the bad effects of nicotine and bootleg cocktails. But all this, fortunately, applies to only a small percentage of the future mothers.

MR. LEISTER, Henry Ford's chief auditor, tells the Federal Court in Detroit that Mr. Ford's profits in seven years, from 1917 to 1924, were $526,441,951. The gross receipts, before taking out income tax, etc., were over eight hundred millions. This shows that the twentieth century offers opportunity to those that understand their business.

ANTI-CATHOLIC AGITATION persists in Latin-America. Guatemala's government has deported a number of priests, accusing them of interfering in politics. And Jesuit priests have been forbidden to enter Guatemala. All foreign priests must have a special permit.

PRESIDENT CALLES of Mexico addresses to the Catholic Archbishop Mora Del Rio a letter of angry warning. It says:

"I notify you once for all that any act of rebellion against the law or disrespect toward the authorities will be punished without consideration of any nature."

CALLES' LETTER is called forth by the Archbishop's letter of protest against government severity, containing this sentence:

"We make before you and the world a most solemn protest, and declare our irrevocable adherence to the Pontiff."

CHICAGO'S Department of Health recommends "sunshine and fresh air," to save babies that die of rickets. The recommending won't do much good to mothers that cannot take their children to the country, to broader streets, or to apartments with "unobstructed southeastern exposure."

Fortunately, Chicago opens all parks to the people, including the precious grass. But babies cannot go to parks alone, and many working mothers cannot take them.

LESSING WROTE that God might forgive men for not giving to children bread that costs money, but would not forgive them for depriving them of sunlight and air that are free.

In cities, unfortunately, sunlight and air are not free.

Profit steps in. And sunlight and air also cost money.

U. S. PROTESTS ARMS DECISION

Geneva, June 4 (A.P.).—The American delegation to the military subcommittee of the preparatory commission on disarmament today entered a formal reservation to the decision to include in peace-time armaments all geographical features of a country with a view to their future use in war.

The Americans objected to the decision on the ground that its wording was too vague and too all-embracing.

The delegation, however, supported a proposal that peace-time effectives should include all defensive organizations of a mother country and colonies, including naval air bases, ports of call, arsenals and other peace-time military establishments. The proposal was adopted.

An Italian amendment asking that canals be regarded as peace-time armament was rejected and a similar fate met a German proposal to consider industries organized with a possible war purpose also as peace-time effectives.

LET NEW U. S. CRUISER BID FOR $10,900,000

Washington, June 4 (A.P.).—Cramp & Sons of Philadelphia will build the navy's new 10,000-ton post-treaty Cruiser Salt Lake City and will provide engines for her and her sister ship, the Pensacola, which will be built at the New York Navy Yard.

The Salt Lake City contract requires a speed of 32½ knots. The ship will be 585 feet, 6 inches over all and have a width of 65 feet 3 inches, and a draft of 19 feet 6¼ inches.

Policeman Hurt at Fire

Patrolman Edward Liston of Watertown was injured at a fire at Nos. 9-11 Kimball road, Watertown, when he rescued Violet Mead, twenty-one, and her father, Joseph Mead. In breaking down two doors to awaken the Mead family on the second floor, he broke a toe and suffered bruises to his right foot. Loss was estimated at $1,000.

TECH PICKS NEW GRADUATE DEAN

Appointment of Dr. Harry Manley Goodwin, professor of physics and electro-chemistry, as dean of graduate students, was announced today at a meeting of the Corporation of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Appointments for the academic year 1926-27 were also announced. Four associate professors have been promoted to full professorship.

Dr. Goodwin was graduated from Tech in 1890 and began his teaching career in the department of physics the same year as an assistant. He was made an assistant professor in 1897.

In 1903 he was appointed associate professor and three years later became professor.

Associate professors appointed to full professorships are: F. E. Armstrong, political economy; S. P. Mulliken, organic chemistry; N. C. Page, electricity, and Donald S. Tucker, economics. Six new instructors were announced.

Fastest Cable in World to Link U. S.-London

New York, June 4 (I.N.S.).—The Western Union Telegraph Company will begin immediately to lay the fastest Trans-Atlantic cable in existence, between New York and London, via Bay Roberts, N. F., and Penzance, England. It will have a capacity of 500 average words a minute, about eight times as fast as any other cable.

The increased speed of transmission is possible through use of metal permalloy, an alloy of approximately 80 per cent. nickel and 20 per cent. iron, which, in thin strips, is wrapped around the copper core.

The cable will be 3,800 miles long. It will be the twentieth cable across the Atlantic.

PLEA FOR SACCO SENT FULLER

Reading, Pa., June 4 (A.P.).—Berks County Socialists sent a resolution today to the Governor of Massachusetts asking that he pardon Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, now under sentence of death.

Communists of Paris Active for Sacco

Paris June 4 (A.P.).—The Communists of Paris are trying to arouse public sympathy in favor of Nicolo Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti, convicted of murder in Massachusetts.

In the top left hand corner of a poster they are displaying five gibbets are represented, each with a figure hanging to it. Above this are the words, "Chicago, November 11, 1887," referring to the execution of anarchists in the Chicago bombing case of that day.

In the lower part of the poster the electric chair is shown with two men about to be executed, with the legend, "Like the five martyrs of Chicago, Sacco and Vanzetti are innocent. Save them!"

Bombing Laid to Agitators in U. S.

By Associated Press.

The bomb explosion in Montevideo today is the second that has occurred in front of an American legation in South American countries within the past few weeks. On May 16 a bomb exploded in front of the United States embassy in Buenos Aires. No one was injured.

That explosion, in police circles, was blamed on agitators who have been protesting against the conviction for murder in Massachusetts of Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti. Several days after the explosion the meeting place of a committee which was carrying on the agitation was raided and several arrests made.

LABOR UPSET SWEDE CABINET

Stockholm, Sweden, June 4 (A.P.)—The Cabinet crisis in Sweden is due to renewal of the conflict on the question of unemployment, which caused the sudden resignation of Premier Brandings' cabinet in 1920.

The Socialist government of Premier Sandlar resigned because Parliament voted in favor of the budget committee's recommendation concerning the relief of unemployed. M. Ekman, leader of the popular prohibition party, was requested by the King to form a new ministry.

The position of the resigned Socialist Cabinet was to respect all strikes, even if declared by Communists.

The new Premier started life as a blacksmith and then became editor of a newspaper of prohibition tendencies in Eskilstuna.

GOT A PET? PUT IT IN SHOW

A pet animal show will be a feature of the field day for children to be held on Saturday afternoon at the J. Randolph Coolidge estate, No. 1014 Boylston street, Chestnut Hill, by the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, assisted by the Red Cross, Boy Scouts and prominent Boston society folk.

Entries for the novel show, in which all kinds of pets are eligible, include a pet turtle, greyhound and pony owned by the children of Mr. and Mrs. George S. West of Saltonstall avenue, Chestnut Hill.

Circus acts and clowns, a treasure hunt, pony rides, Punch and Judy, grab bag, magician, African dodger, athletic contests, music, dancing, prizes and refreshments are listed on the program of the field day which will extend from two until six o'clock. In case of rain the affair will be staged on Monday.

A large outpouring of children is hoped for by the Society which is to use the twenty-five cent admission fees for a fund for maintaining the temporary home of the organization at No. 43 Mt. Vernon street where children are housed while their cases are being investigated.

Arrangements, including setting aside of a plot for free parking space for automobiles near the grounds, have been made by a committee headed by Mrs. F. C. Church, Jr., the former Muriel Vanderbilt, who is chairman of the Junior Division Auxiliary of the Society.

CHINESE WAR LORDS IN PACT AFTER INTRIGUE

Pekin, June 4 (A.P.).—A new element of intrigue and treachery, which threatened to further complicate the puzzle of Chinese politics, but which apparently has served only to strengthen the alliance of the two great war lords of the north, Marshals Chang Tso-Lin of Mukden and Wu Pei-Fu of Hankow, came to light today. Marshal Wu summarily dismissed one of his chief lieutenants, General Chin Yun-Ao, civil governor of Honan Province. Chin's dismissal and Wu's intention to take direct command of his troops, if they do not precipitate a new muddle along the Yangtze River, are taken to mean vigorous operations against the national armies.

BRITISH MINE PARLEY SOUGHT

London, June 4 (A.P.).—A renewed effort to bring about a conference between the coal mine owners and the miners is under way.

Evan Williams, chairman of the Mine Owners' Association, has taken the initiative, with approval of the government, and is sending today by airplane to Brussels a letter to Herbert Smith, president of the miners' federation, suggesting that a small committee representing the miners and mine owners hold a conference in an endeavor to end the strike deadlock.

Mr. Smith at present is in Brussels attending a meeting of the Miners' International Federation.

The new peace move is thought to have originated in conferences between government representatives and officials of the Mine Owners' Association during the past few days.

IT'S "MORNING AFTER" FOR SON OF H. THAW

Chicago, June 4 (A.P.).—Search for Russell Thaw, nineteen, son of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, was extended today by several cities by a Chicago hotel when he departed, leaving a bill for several hundred dollars.

The bill, said to represent the expense of several parties, automobile hire, and two weeks' room rent, was directed to Harry Thaw, Russell's father, at Pittsburgh, after the youth's absence was discovered.

How he got his luggage out of the hotel is not known. The hotel management said that among three girls and two other young men whom Thaw entertained was a youth named Roger Deiss, of Detroit, son of a manufacturer. Deiss was overheard to say that he contemplated a visit to his mother, now divorced, in Kansas City, and it is thought Thaw may have gone there.

To Sing in Hub

JOSEF ROSENBLATT
Noted cantor who will sing at the Metropolitan Theatre to pay off a debt contracted by another.

Josef Rosenblatt, a popular tenor cantor, whose appearance on the Metropolitan stage has been announced for next week, is making his present stage tour, it is understood, only in order to discharge a large debt, contracted by others, but which puts him under no legal obligation.

His sincere religious fervor, which kept him away from the stage, was more or less indirectly responsible for bringing him to it. For it was this strong sentiment which allowed him to become prevailed upon to lend his name and financial support to an idealistic Jewish undertaking which was, however, so utterly misdirected by its active managers that he was forced to seek momentary relief in bankruptcy.

Cantor B. Fox and I. Karas will chant the psalms. Isidore H. Fox will be chief marshal of the parade, while the exercise ceremony will be opened by Max Nirgosh. Morris Schneider will preside.

The officers of the building committee include Morris Schneider, president; Samuel Finkelstein, Jacob A. Missel, vice-presidents; Benjamin Yanofsky, treasurer; Clarence Yanofsky, general secretary.

An extensive membership campaign is now under way by the Dorchester Zionist District under the direction of Bernard Ginsburg, chairman. Other members of the committee are Albert M. Sacks, president; Dr. R. Sharenson, vice-president; Frances Burnce, recording-secretary; Bernard Ginsburg, financial secretary; Gabriel Becker, treasurer.

The Beth El Free Loan Society held its regular monthly meeting at the Temple Beth El, Fowler street, Dorchester. Philip Arenson, the newly elected financial secretary, was installed, succeeding in office M. L. Hootstein.

HARVARD POET PENS COLLEGE MOTHER GOOSE

Graduate's Volume of Jingles Pokes Fun at Girls, Highballs, Flowers, Etc.

Harvard men, who have to have their laugh a day and sometimes one or two at night, received a volume of them today, as the waning season waned in Cambridge.

F. DeWolf Pingree

Safely out of college, and with an extra couple of years put between him and the Dean's office for good measure, Frederick DeWolf Pingree, Harvard, '24, rented a typewriter somewhere and wrote "The Harvard Mother Goose," which volume of jingles appeared in a shy, shrinking, egg-yoke hue today.

With clever pen illustrations by Robert Martin, '23, the jingles treat lightly of various people and subjects, including, of course, Prof. Copeland "Copey," Boston girls, graduates, the Watch and Ward Society, highballs, flivvers, Radcliffe, the Lampoon and Crimson and whatnot.

Leading off in the volume of jingles is the following:

THE SACROSANCT.

What are big Hahvad men made of, made of?
What are big Hahvad men made of?
English drawls and Scotch highballs;
And that's what big Hahvad men are made of.

What are little Boston girls made of, made of?
What are little Boston girls made of?
Red flannels and ice and all that's nice;
And that's what little Boston girls are made of, made of.

And another in the yellow volume:

GOOD FELLOWSHIP.

Graduates foster outings at Gloucester
For a genial spree;
They clap and slap upon the back
Scores they're bored to see.

Still another jingle is:

BOSTON NIGHT LIFE.

Sing a song of Somerset
Hip-pocket full of rye
Four and twenty Sophomores
Tying each his tie.

When the ball was ending,
The stags began to lean
Was not that a pretty tale
To set before the Dean?

Another jingle hits on the sport scramble (non-combatant):

THE LIGHT FANTASTIC.

Three blind mice, see how they run!
They all run after a managership
And sweat and scrape and bow and skip.
Did you ever see such a breathless clip
For three blind mice?

And so on!

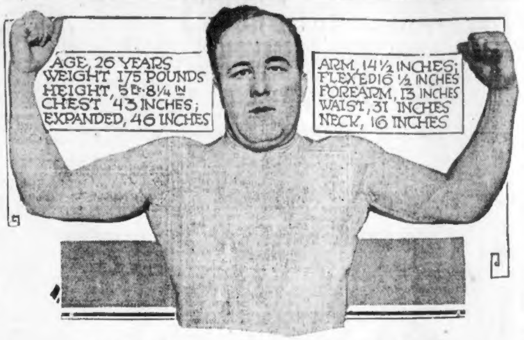
CUPID KAYOS HUB'S PERFECT COP



HE'S STRONG, BUT HIS HEART IS WEAK!

In this perfect age—when even some husbands are put in that class—Boston's "100 per cent. perfect specimen of manhood" is knocked completely down and out, and by a chubby, dinky, little love god, too! Traffic Officer John J. Walkins of Stuart and Tremont streets, who was picked by a film company as a "perfect man" (note measurements above), is to be married Thursday to Miss Josephine Mae Wood of No. 2 Baldwin terrace, Everett. The ceremony will take place in the rectory of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Everett.

INDICTED IN MURDER OF WIFE FOR INSURANCE

Murphysboro, Ill., June 4 (A.P.)—The death of Mrs. Harry Chamberlain and a little daughter in a fire which destroyed the family home three weeks ago, has resulted in a murder indictment against Chamberlain, a life insurance salesman. 3 TO 6 YEARS AS DYNAMITER

Haverhill, June 4.—John E. Merrick was taken to the State prison at Charlestown today to serve a sentence of from three to six years, imposed more than two years ago by Judge Joseph Walsh, following his conviction on a charge of being an accessory before the fact of placing dynamite near the Knipe Brothers' shoe factory in Ward Hill.

Merrick has been at liberty under $15,000 bonds since his conviction. He gained a stay of execution, pending an appeal to the Supreme Judicial Court. The Supreme Court overruled his exceptions and sustained the verdict of guilty.

He maintained his silence to the last. Although he pleaded not guilty, he never took the stand in his own defense either in the lower or the higher courts. Privately, however, he always maintained that he was innocent.

PAYMASTER IS SLAIN BY THUGS

Newark, N. J., June 4 (I.N.S.).—Theodore Conway of Union, N. J., a Public Service Railway paymaster, was shot and killed today by thugs, who sought in vain to steal a $10,000 payroll.

Conway and a guard were outside the carbarns in the pay car when the thugs drew up in a large auto and started firing.

Conway fell, fatally wounded, and his guard was shot in the right arm.

Frightened by other employes who rushed from the carbarns at the sound of the shots, the thugs leaped into their car and sped away.

A half dozen employes piled into a second machine and gave chase. Several got a good view of the fleeing car, a conspicuous olive green, and officials of the company expressed the hope that the thugs would be captured.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Plenty of Entertainment at Millwood Hunt Show Today and Tomorrow

WELCOMED ON RETURN TO PARIS
Victor Henry Berenger, French ambassador to the United States, and Madame Berenger received a warm welcome when they recently returned to their native soil. (Photo by Bert Roberts.)

TWO DAYS OF OPEN AIR horse show, with more than 700 entries, is the record-breaking exhibition starting today. It's under Millwood Hunt banners and is staged at Reginald W. Bird's "Waveney Farm" in Framingham.

RANGING THROUGH SOME forty classes, there's something spectacular for every hour of the two days. The climax, of course, comes with today's hunt team entries for the Millwood trophy and Saturday's hunter's sweepstakes.

BOTH WILL BE SHOWN on the "outside" course, which means that the horses and riders go over natural obstacles across hunting country. And both "inside" and "outside" courses are plainly to be seen from the grandstands and parking spaces.

FOR THE MILLWOOD trophy the entry list is a record-breaker. Myopia holds two legs on this superb challenge trophy, Norfolk Hunt one, and now hunt clubs and private owners to the number of twenty are seeking the prize.

RIDERS IN THEIR HUNT colors, three horses to a team, will provide thrills galore for the gallery. Friday's classes "outside" for hunters will repeat the spirited picture and of course the ring classes all contribute to the scene.

WILLIAM STUART FORBES, Mrs. Gardiner H. Fiske, Mrs. Reginald W. Bird, Francis Peabody, Colonel John Roberts, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Channing M. Wells, Mrs. E. Sohier Welch and Harry G. Vaughan will have motor parties.

ALSO HENRY D. SEARS, Leverett Saltonstall, Phineas W. Sprague, Miss Muriel G. Saltonstall, Adnah Neyhart, Mrs. Homer Loring, Robert F. Herrick, Robert M. Burnett and ever so many more, each and all either having horses entered, or their relatives have entered mounts or are riding.

EVERYONE PREDICTS THAT Millwood will be the biggest show event north of the Mason and Dixon line, or below, for that matter, even excepting the famous and always smart Devon show, so long a classic.

REGINALD W. BIRD heads the committee selected to put the show through with dispatch and precision. His assistants in and out of the ring are Nathaniel I. Bowditch, Charles F. Adams, Adnah Neyhart, John P. Bowditch, John R. Macomber and George H. D. Lamson.

ALTHOUGH THE PRINCIPALS of the Charles E. Cotting-Constance Binney bridal in Old Lyme, Ct., insisted that it was but a small country wedding of simplest ritual it was, nevertheless, immensely important in the social scheme.

MR. COTTING'S ENTOURAGE, a group of fifteen ushers and best man, quite impressive as to numbers, was markedly in contrast to the piquant bride and her one attending matron. Major Francis T. Colby of Boston was best man.

OTHERS OF BOSTON'S ultra set in attendance were John O. Stubbs, Herbert Jaques, William David Sohier, Jr., John A. Sweetser, William DeFord Beal, George R. Harding, Parkman D. Howe, Roger F. Hooper and Frederic M. Burnham.

ALSO PAUL G. COURTNEY, Francis C. Gray, Ralph Lowell and Dr. Edward Harding. Richard Whitney of New York City and John Shillito of Cincinnati did usher duty at Old Lyme Church for the ceremonial, and at Gray Gables for the reception.

THE BRIDE'S PETITE and fair type was set off excellently with white flat crepe ornamented with silver lined crystals. There was a silver lame train, silver slippers and a veil of illusion held with silver banded in orange blossoms.

MRS. DAVID C. SLOANE, sister of the bride, now of Baltimore, wore dainty flower chiffon in Spring green tints; her slippers were green and a large drooping hat dripped ostrich fronds. The bouquet was valley lilies.

LOCALLY IT WAS Miss Mary Hubbard who held the bridal spotlight, her marriage to Stanley Goodwin French celebrated at Barnstable House, the Weston home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wells Hubbard.

BRIDAL RAIMENT OF cut velvet appliqued on chiffon was lovely in the extreme. An empire gown, long of sleeve and high of waistline, emphasized by a train of the court mode, and a sheaf of white iris with maidenhair fern for bouquet, were stunning costume points.

DINNER AT THE CHESTNUT HILL home of Miss Helen Mullegan for an usher group, just before a dance at the Cambridge Boat Club, is tomorrow evening's program for Cambridge-Haskell school girls who, this evening, celebrate commencement with Henry Copley Greene as commencement speaker.

WEDDING GIFTS FILL 2 ROOMS OF MANSION

Albany, N. Y., June 4 (Universal).—Two rooms in the executive mansion are filled with a dazzling array of wedding gifts, attesting the popularity of Miss Emily Smith—and of her father, Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

The collection includes almost every conceivable article that might please the fancy of a bride, which Miss Smith will become on Saturday when she is married to Major John A. Warner, superintendent of the New York State police. Literally hundreds of bridal presents have come from social and political friends of Miss Smith and her father in virtually every city and hamlet in this State and from many other States.

The gifts range from checks for sizeable amounts, strings of diamonds and pearls and gorgeous tapestries and other pieces of art, to simpler, but none the less worthy, linens from the good old neighbors of the Smiths in Oliver street, on New York's East Side, where both "Al" and his daughter, Emily, were born.

Governor Smith gave his daughter a pearl necklace, while William H. Todd, president of the Todd Shipbuilding Company and an old friend of the Governor's, sent a huge diamond. The contribution of James J. Riordan, president of the United States Trucking Company, another close friend of Governor Smith, was a check for $2,500.

MAY INSIST ON RESIGNATION OF RECTOR

Investigation of St. Ann's Church Row to Be Made Monday

An investigation of affairs of St Ann's Episcopal Church Dorchester, and particular inquiry into the factional dispute which came to a head when police were called during a row over Memorial Day service collection, will be made at a meeting of the general diocesan committee next Monday.

One of the church officers who is of the group opposed to the rector Rev William Partridge "fighting pastor," said today that vestrymen will insist that Rev Partridge submit his resignation.

Bishop Slattery has declined to issue a statement at the present time, and also refused to admit he had received a petition signed by eighty members of the parish seeking removal of the vestrymen of the church.

"In a general way a disagreement of this kind is brought to my attention and turned over to the authorities of the diocese for decision," said Bishop Slattery. "Further than that I have nothing to say."

Mrs. Ethel M. McClure, a prominent parishioner, charges the trouble has grown out of an attempt at "dictatorship" of two members of the vestry, John W Farrar and John Bradford.

Taubman's Selects the Kelly-Springfield Buckeye Cord

Because of the uncertain conditions of the rubber industry which, particularly in the past year, have caused extreme fluctuations in the price and quality of tires, TAUBMAN'S has refrained from engaging extensively in the retailing of tires until the present time.

The rubber market is now once more on a sound, firm basis. We, therefore, are happy to announce that from offers made us by many of the foremost tire manufacturers in the country we have selected the famous Kelly-Springfield Buckeye Cords, because:

1. The Kelly-Springfield Buckeye line is made by one of the most responsible manufacturers.
2. Every tire manufactured by the Kelly-Springfield Co. is guaranteed under the standard warranty of the Tire Manufacturers Division of the Rubber Association of America.
3. Kelly-Springfield Buckeye Cords are priced lower than any other tire of the same quality.
4. The Kelly-Springfield line, in every respect, measures up to the high standard of quality that distinguishes all merchandise sold at TAUBMAN'S.

A great stock of Kelly-Springfield Buckeye Cords has already arrived at our stores and is now being offered at special introductory prices. These tires are ALL first quality—guaranteed and fresh stock.

WORLD'S FIRST 'HELLO' GIRL IS DEAD

Miss Emma M. Nutt, the world's first "hello" girl, died today at her home, 11 Kirkland place, Cambridge. She was seventy-seven years of age.

For thirty-three years Miss Nutt was in the employ of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company. Her first position as operator was for the Telephone Despatch Company. She started work in September, 1878, and received $4 weekly.

Miss Nutt continued as an operator until 1883 when she was appointed Chelsea chief operator. Later she served in the Richmond, Main and Fort Hill offices. In 1898 she was appointed a matron.

In July 1911 Miss Nutt was retired from active service.

It was her greatest wish to live until persons talking over the telephone would be able to see each other during the conversation.

Telephones were used for business only in the early years of Miss Nutt's service as operator. Subscribers of early days were much the same as today. They waxed indignant and oftimes swore constantly when forced to wait from fifteen to twenty minutes for a connection.

"That's why the company decided to have 'hello' girls instead of boys," Miss Nutt said in a recent interview. "They thought no irate subscriber would voice cuss words while a lady was listening on the line. And the swearing stopped when I started work," she added.

Texas Co. Buys

New York, June 4 (A. P.)—Control of the Southwestern Petroleum Co., involving the acquisition of its producing properties and all other assets, has been obtained by the Texas Co., it was announced today.

WOMEN MUST FACE 'WET' ISSUE

Chicago, June 4 (A. P.)—Women cannot ignore the fact that there is a nation-wide demand for modification of the Volstead act, declared Mrs. A. E. Berglund of Galva, Ill., today in addressing the Democratic Women's State Committee, of which she is president.

"They must face the issue squarely," she said. "The attack ostensibly at least is directed against the Volstead act and not the eighteenth amendment. It is probably true that a higher per cent of alcohol in [illegible] may be allowed.

"Whether modification of the Volstead act would be an entering wedge eventually to bring about a repeal of the eighteenth amendment must be seriously considered. It cannot be denied that the Volstead act has less public sentiment to support it than any other law on the statute books."

Three Milion Women Back Volstead Act

Atlantic City, N. J., June 4 (A. P.)—The women of the country do not fear a dry referendum, in the opinion of Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which at the biennial convention has placed three million women on record as unequivocally supporting the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act," and opposed to any modification.

"If there should be a national referendum, and the women would not fear one, the endorcement campaign would be waged by every individual club in the country," she said.

SIX NEW SERGEANTS TO BE APPOINTED

Six police sergeants will be appointed next week. Twelve candidates took the examination for promotion from the ranks.

Monday the 69 men who have been in training as probationists at the police school will be put out "on the bricks."

As soon as Commissioner Wilson catches that salmon at the Rangeleys, which is expected by the [illegible] at least to be before next Wednesday, he will return and appoint [illegible] new trainees to the school.

GETS IN BAD ON 2-VOTE BOAST

Woonsocket, R. I., June 4.—A remark alleged to have been made by Representative Alphonse D. LeBlanc, Democrat, of Woonsocket, that he voted twice for President at the last election may get him into a "peck of trouble."

"He voted once in Woonsocket where he resides and once in Holyoke, Mass., where he has property," the Representative is alleged to have said publicly at a civic improvement meeting in Woonsocket.

Affidavits, setting forth the allegations and made by Simon G. Shepard of No. 97 Olof street, were to be forwarded today to District Attorney Charles H. Wright of the Western Massachusetts district, with request that he begin action.

Representative LeBlanc denied today that he had actually voted twice in the presidential election, although he admitted having said he had. He asserted examination of the voting records in Holyoke would exonerate him.

BARGE STICKS BALKS TRAFFIC

Hundreds of city bound commuters from Lynn and the North Shore were delayed more than an hour and a half today when a large seagoing barge, in tow, was jammed against the West Lynn drawbridge.

Efforts of the crew of the tug Palas to dislodge the barge proved fruitless and Boston & Maine railroad officials ordered all stalled trains rerouted over the Wakefield branch.

W. H. Butler, yardmaster of the Lynn station, was injured while assisting to free the barge. Butler's right hand became jammed between boat and bridge and was cut severely.

Civil War Vet Dies

Worcester, June 4 (A. P.)—Edward J. Curtis, veteran of the Civil War and for many years an official in several textile mills in New England, died here today following a stroke. He was born in West Chelmsford January 15, 1846.

4 COEDS DRUNK ARE EXPELLED

FOLLIES' CALL STRONGEST, HE DIVORCES HER

Testifying that his wife preferred life behind the footlights and before the movie "kleigs" to the humdrum of home and baby, Hugh W. Timothy, automotive engineer, was today granted a decree of divorce from Mrs. Sarah Charlton Timothy, now gracing the New York edition of the Ziegfeld Follies.

Judge McCooe in Suffolk Probate Court, also gave custody of their eight-year-old son, Charlton Timothy, to the father, who alleged desertion in 1922.

The romance between the young engineer and the attractive stage and screen girl culminated in marriage in 1917 in New York. Their married life was happy, he told the court, until his employer ordered his transfer to Springfield.

There the Timothys lived happily for a while, he said. Mrs. Timothy tired quickly of life there, however, and longed for Broadway and the gay life of theatre green-rooms, the husband testified. In 1922 she left him and has not returned, he testified.

U. S. JURY QUICKLY FREES AUTO DEALER OF THEFTS

It took a Federal Court jury here today just 15 minutes to find Phillip E. Schwartz, Pittsfield jeweler and used car dealer, not guilty on charges that he carried on a business in automobiles stolen in New York State to run across the Massachusetts border. Judge James A. Lowell characterized the story told by Schwartz as plausible, when he charged the jury. Schwartz testified he handled the cars, as alleged, but did so in good faith, not knowing they were stolen. He pointed out that he recorded his purchases and sales in accordance with the law and made no effort to conceal his dealings.

By decision of the full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court the Boston Conservatory of Music today lost its appeal in its suit to recover several hundred dollars from Ary Dulfer of Huntington avenue, a violin teacher, who was discharged for smoking during school hours. The conservatory claimed one half of money collected by Dulfer from private pupils after his discharge, asserting it had a contract with this provision. A jury decided in the violinist's favor and the conservatory's management appealed. Dulfer was discharged as a teacher by Ag. de Jacchia, Pops conductor, who is also connected with the music school.

'MIDDY' FORCED TO SERVE IN U. S. NAVY

Status of Annapolis Man Who Refused Commission to Be Settled at End of Cruise

Annapolis, Md., June 4. (A.P.)—As a result of his refusal to take the oath of allegiance to the United States and accept an ensign's commission, Earle B. Zirkle, graduated yesterday from the Naval Academy, today was aboard the battleship New York still a midshipman, and under orders to participate in the annual cruise of the lower classmen.

Zirkle's refusal of his commission, an act unprecedented in the Naval Academy's history, was due, he said, to an increasing distaste for naval life. Three times during the past few months he had tendered his resignation from the academy, but all were refused. One Navy department ruling precludes resignations during the final term and requires two years service after graduation. One of his resignations was submitted just prior to the commencement exercises yesterday.

Secretary Wilbur ordered the youth assigned to the New York which will sail from Annapolis today. This action, considered punitive, is not, however, unusual when a graduate has failed to meet some requirement.

Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton, superintendent of the academy, said Zirkle would be permitted to keep his diploma and his status will be determined at the expiration of the cruise.

Garden City, Kan., June 4 (A.P.).—Midshipman E. B. Zirkle of Garden City, Kan., who refused to take the oath of induction into the United States Navy upon graduation from the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., was appointed to the Naval Training School by Representative Tincher of Kansas in 1922.

Zirkle, the valedictorian of his class, was graduated from the Garden City High School in 1922.

He wrote a letter to his parents here about two weeks ago and said he would be glad when he was graduated and that he did not think he would accept a commission. He is now twenty-two years old.

NEW BILLION DOLLAR R. R. MERGER PLAN

Washington, June 4 (I.N.S.).—Undaunted by their failure to secure Federal approval of their $1,000,000,000 railroad merger, O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, former Cleveland newsboys, are preparing to submit a revised unification plan to the Interstate Commerce commission, it was learned today.

According to reports reaching Washington, the Van Sweringens have practically completed their new plan, which involves the merger of the Chesapeake & Ohio, Pere Marquette, Erie and Hocking Valley with the Nickel Plate system, along lines that will remove the objections that were raised against the former proposed unification. It is understood the new plan will be submitted to the commission this month.

$19,505.02 Found In Clothes of Aged Tramp

Cincinnati, June 4 (A.P.).—Two weeks ago an aged man, apparently penniless, was found wandering the streets here, talking in a rambling maner.

Sent to a hospital for observation, he said his name was Fritz Mall, seventy, formerly of St. Paul.

Search of his clothing revealed $19,505.02 in cash and securities. A son said he would take Mall home.

Ware, June 4.—Delphis Dupde, 41, of High street and Patrick Seery, 56, of Eddy street escaped being buried in a cave-in of a trench on Benham street. Dupre was covered to thearmpits while Seery was covered to above the waist.

GIANT ICEBERGS DOT ATLANTIC

New York, June 4 (A.P.).—The White Star liner Arabic arrived today with a report of having passed mammoth icebergs similar to that which caused the Titanic disaster. Several other ships arriving the last two weeks have reported icebergs in the Trans-Atlantic sea lanes.

Chief Officer Moffat of the Arabic said that when off Cape Race, 17 hours from Halifax, two giant peaks of ice were sighted. On approaching closer it was seen that the two peaks belonged to the same berg the middle part of which was submerged. The Arabic docked 24 hours late because of a 30 hour fog.

Mysteries of a House Where Ghosts Walk Revealed by Great Woman Writer

One of the paintings done [illegible] especially for this serial by W. D. Stevens

Carroway, armed to kill the unknown marauder, mysteriously disappears

Professor William A. Porter becomes owner of Twin Hollows, a country and shore estate of his deceased uncle, Horace Porter. Porter lives with his wife, Jane, and niece, Edith, at the University in which he teaches. Jane manifests every evidence of mediumistic ability. She "sees" many things that are inexplicable. The Professor determines to occupy the mansion left by his uncle. It has a neighborhood reputation of being haunted. Jane objects to living in the house and compromises in an agreement to live in the Lodge. Warren Halliday, sweetheart of Edith, comes to Twin Hollows and lives in the boathouse.

Then begins a series of the most marvelous ghostly happenings. The Professor believes that his uncle may have been murdered. Other crimes committed are blamed by the neighborhood on the ghost inhabitants of the Twin Hollow mansion. Circumstances entangle the Professor in an apparent indication of guilt. The Red Lamp figures in these manifestations.

Detective Benchley enters the case. He evidently believes the Professor responsible for the mysterious crimes.

The Professor rents the house to a mysterious Mr. Bethel who has a secretary named Gordon. Dr. Hayward, town physician, is added to the number who suspect Porter. Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone call on the Porters. Mrs. Livingstone reveals mysterious happenings in Uncle Horace's house. Professor Porter and his wife receive a message from the "spirit world" warning them of danger.

CHAPTER X.

OUR love story goes on, and I am as helpless there as in other directions. Edith proffering herself simply and sweetly, in a thousand small coquetries and as many unstudied allurements, and young Halliday gravely adoring her, and holding back.

Tonight, sitting on the veranda of the boathouse, while the boy set off Roman candles and skyrockets over the water, Edith asked me how I thought she could earn some money.

"Earn money?" I said. "What on earth for? I've never known you to think about money before."

"Well, I'm thinking about it now," she said briefly, and relapsed into silence, from which she roused in a moment or so to state that money was a pest, and if she were making a world she'd have none in it.

I found my position slightly delicate, but I ventured to suggest that no man worth his salt would care to have his wife support him. She ignored that completely, however, and said she was thinking of writing a book. A book she said would bring in a great deal of money, and "nobody would have to worry about anything."

And I honestly believe the child is trying it. Her light is still going tonight as I can see under her door.

The Sheriff has offered a thousand dollars reward for the apprehension and conviction of the sheep killer. A notice to that effect is neatly tacked on a post outside our gates, and must rather appeal to Greenough's sense of humor, if he has any. I understand Livingstone is privately offering another five hundred.

Mr. Bethel and his secretary arrive tomorrow, and the house is about ready for them, in spite of the fact that Annie Cochran moves about it, unoccupied as it is, like a scared rabbit. I shall see him at once on his arrival.

Halliday will finish the float today, and I understand intends then to start on the sloop. He has found a way to address me, instead of the formal "sir" of the first day or two, and now calls me skipper.

Today, for the first time, I have taken him fully into my confidence. I had been half way debating it, but the matter of the dressing gown decided it.

(Note: I find that in the original Journal I made no note of this incident. The facts are as follows:

At Jane's suggestion I proceeded to the main house, to remove such of Uncle Horace's clothing as remained in the closets and so on, to a trunk in the attic. Since the night of her experience in the pantry she had not entered the house. I was on my way when I met Halliday, and he returned with me.

I found the dressing gown which poor old Horace was wearing when

CLUB FOR LOVED AND LOST

Widows, Widowers Also to Be Admitted to Novel Social Organization

Boston is going to have a branch of Springfield's most popular organization, the Widows' and Widowers' Club. It's the fastest growing club in the Western Massachusetts city also.

Right at the start, let it be said, this is no matrimonial bureau scheme. It's a social affair from start to finish, though there's no attempt to prevent any wide-awake widower from marrying a fascinating widow if he so chooses.

In addition to Boston, Northampton, Holyoke, New Haven, Worcester and Greenfield are going to get branches.

Let J. J. Risley of Springfield, trustee, booster and cheer leader, elucidate on the club. To begin with, as stated above, its purely social, and not matrimonial, though sometimes Cupid does get busy.

Widows and widowers, bachelor maids who'll admit they're more than 30, and bachelors are eligible. Hourly in Springfield, says Mr. Risley, they're joining the club. The average age there is 40, though there's one old buck of 93 who still capers at the club dances.

The club came into being November 8, 1921, when four widows and four widowers met in somebody's front parlor. Since then its impetus has been gaining momentum. The membership now exceeds 300.

The "baby member" of the club is an attractive young widow of 28. She may become an honorary member, too, it is believed.

HUNTS STOLEN DAUGHTER

New York, June 4 (I.N.S.)—Enacting a drama more realistic than any of his other works, Patrick Kearney, playwright, is searching the Pocono Mountains today for his six-year-old daughter Morita, who he alleges has been spirited away by his divorced wife and his mother-in-law, Mrs. W. B. Day of Glen Ridge, N. J.

Kearney said his former wife returned from London last week to her mother's home at Glen Ridge, where the child has been staying.

Kearney divorced his wife two years ago, naming G. A. Porterfield, and obtained sole custody of the child. Mrs. Kearney, the former Anita Day, later married Porterfield.

Kearney is the author of "A Man's Man" and other Broadway productions. He planned to send Morita to Europe tomorrow with his friends, the Baron and Baroness Von Koczian.

There are a number of Napoleon's hats in existence. The Invalides Museum alone has three which were worn by him during the battle at Prussian Eylau in 1807, on the island at Elba and at St. Helena, respectively.

Exhibitors in Stormy Session When Eligibility of Voting Members Is Questioned

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

Los Angeles, June 4.—It looks to me as if someone is paying money to keep the convention from working in harmony. Three years ago you had Adolph Zukor on his knees to you and now he has you on your knees.

Hurling these words at the theatre owners now in convention, H. C. Ritchey of Detroit, made a speech in which he said the only possible solution for harmony was in the selection of a big man to head the [illegible]

Ritchey's speech followed the report of the credentials committee in which Jack Harward, chairman, had said that out of 435 registered voters only 325 had paid their dues and were qualified to vote for directors and officers. After two hours' arguing for and against the credentials report, the report was adopted as it stands, by the convention.

The standard contract which had created such a furore was disposed of in short order. Sydney Cohen, chairman of the committee on business relations, said the committee had voted to accept the original contract and to hold as illegal the contract with the percentage and road-show clauses.

In other words, the clauses with the red ink which caused Joseph Seider, chairman of the contract committee, so much anguish will not be accepted. A resolution was then passed authorizing R. F. Woodhull, president of the motion picture theatre owners to appoint a committee of five members to negotiate with Will H. Hays for a new contract.

Mrs. Alfred Graham, president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs asked that smoking, drinking and bedroom scenes be eliminated from the films.

We were lonely—we wanted to meet nice fellows—should we let the flirting pair pick us up?

Behind the heavy curtains were thin bars

EVERY Thursday night Greta and I used to have dinner together at Lin Ching's Chop Suey Restaurant. Then we'd buy gallery seats to some show at a dollar ten. We often wished we had fellows along with us.

"It's hard in New York meeting decent men who might really care about you —and marry you," I said to Greta.

"We could meet them all right," Greta said, "if we had nerve like some girls."

"You mean, pick some one up?"

"Yes—there are two fellows alone—they're watching us—shall we notice them?"

So we flirted with the fellows till they spoke to us, and they made a date with us to go to a dance hall after the show.

We danced and danced. The warm dance hall—and the excitement bewildered us. Then I thought we were being taken home. In the taxi, my mind cleared and I saw our danger, but knew I must follow through to take care of Greta . . ."

Here, with the truthfulness of life itself—a girl sets forth clearly what occurred when she and her companion became "pick-ups"—abandoning what they had learned at home for the sake of a thrill.

U. S. Team Suffers Smashing Setback at Wentworth

By ROBERT HARLOW

(International News Service Staff Correspondent.)

Virginia Water, England, June 4.—American golfing prestige, which has been rampant in England since Jess Sweetser won the British amateur championship and the American team won the Walker Cup, received a severe jolt today.

English professional golfers, playing a team of American professionals for the Ryder Cup, gave the Americans a complete trouncing in the first day's play of the two days' match.

Playing thirty-six hole [illegible] matches today, the best of American professional [illegible] went down to defeat in no uncertain manner, without winning a single match.

Abe Mitchell and George Duncan defeated Walter Hagen and Jim Barnes, nine and eight.

Aubrey Boomer and Archie Compston defeated T. D. Armour and Joe Kirkwood, three and two.

George Gadd and Arthur Havers defeated W. Mehlhorn and Al Watrous, three and two.

Ted Ray and Fred Robson beat Cyril Walker and Fred McLeod, [illegible] and two.

Suggs Out to Avenge Defeat by Herman

By JACK CONWAY

CHICK SUGGS will avenge the defeat he suffered at the hands of Babe Herman last Winter when he clashes with the [illegible] in a ten-round bout at a Suffolk A. A. [illegible] next Tuesday night according to a statement made today by David Luminansky, manager of the New Bedford featherweight [illegible].

"HERMAN is the only boxer who has defeated Suggs during the past two years," said Luminansky. "I believe the conditions of the bout had much to do with Suggs' defeat," continued the little colored fighter's pilot. "Three nights before the Herman match Suggs fought Abe Attel Goldstein in New York at 118 pounds.

Jack Conway

"The weight for the Herman bout was 127 pounds. Instead Babe came in at 1[illegible] pounds giving [illegible] pounds for Suggs. This big weight advantage was a distinct advantage to Herman.

"Those persons who claim Suggs is afraid of Herman's right hand punch are doing the New Bedford featherweight an injustice. I'll admit Babe hits a mighty hard wallop with his right, but you have never found Chick backing away from a fighter merely because he was able to sock with deadly effect."

Suggs is training for the tussle at New Bedford. He is more eager to win over Herman than from any fighter he has ever met. A great deal also depends upon the outcome of the skirmish as Suggs is billed to [illegible] with Bushy Graham at Madison Square Garden. A defeat at the hands of Herman might cost him his bout with Graham.

THE preliminary card will feature some of the best performers among the local punchers. Tony Julian of Brockton will oppose Red Griffin of Chelsea, Andy Martin of the South End will tackle Terry Martin of Providence, Jimmy (Kid) R[illegible] of Portland will clash with Newport Johnny Brown, while Vic H[illegible] of Malden will collide with Jim Flynn of the South End. In the four round opener Eddie Carey, New England amateur featherweight champion, will take on Joe Minerva of the South End.

JIM MALONEY, South Boston heavyweight, has been offered a bout with Johnny Risko at Cleveland, according to an announcement made today by Manager Johnny McGrath. Maloney has been training at Kelley and Hayes' Gym for several weeks and will soon be ready to go. It was planned to start Maloney's campaign by taking on Carl Carter at the Revere Cycle Track but that match has been called off.

IT IS Maloney's hope that he will eventually [illegible] able to secure a return engagement with Jack Sharkey, New England heavyweight champion.

HARVARD GIVES CREW GREAT SEND-OFF

[illegible] recent events in Crimson crew circles failed to dampen the ardor of Harvard's undergraduate body, as a large and enthusiastic mass meeting was held to cheer the [illegible] before leaving for their Red Top training quarters.

The [illegible] varsity band followed by hundreds of students paraded through Harvard square late this afternoon and assembled at the Newell boathouse to cheer for the huskies of Coach Bert Haines, the new rowing mentor.

Stirred by the publicity attendant upon Coach Stevens' resignation, and feeling that they have much at stake the varsity crewmen have reached a point of high tension.

Just what changes Haines will decide upon for the varsity and jayvee seatings in the Yale regatta are not yet known, but during the stay at Red Top there is likely to be some overhauling.

New Haven, Ct., June 4 (A.P.).—The Yale crews were packing up their bag and baggage today preparatory to moving to Gales Ferry on the Thames River, where the men will round out their training for the annual regatta with Harvard late this month. There will be no more rowing on the Housatonic at Derby after today. The shells will be shipped to Gales Ferry today and tomorrow. The men will leave here Sunday. The training launches, which have been waiting for the water to rise in the locks at Derby, will be brought to this city by water.

Boston Girl Is Beaten in Paris Net Tilt

By FREDERICK E. ABBOTT

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Paris, June 4 (I.N.S.).—The first American upset in the international hard courts championships came today when Mme. Danet and Mlle. Rene Vlasto defeated Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup and Miss Isabelle Mumford of Boston, 3—6, 6—3, 6—4, in the women's doubles.

The Americans broke about even in today's play.

Howard Kinsey won a long five-set match from the young Argentine Cattaruzza and Miss Mary K. Browne eliminated Mlle. Desandes De Danoet.

On the other hand, Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, was defeated by Mme. Mathieu, one of the better younger French players and, paired with Miss Isabelle Mumford, lost to Mme. Danet and Regina Vlasto in the doubles.

Helen Wills, the American champion, was indisposed and her match with Mlle. K. Bouman of Holland was postponed until tomorrow. Suzanne Lenglen eliminated Mrs. Shepherd-Barron of England [illegible] of a game.

Miss Wills is suffering from a slight cold, which she [illegible] playing in the rain, against Mme. [illegible] on Wednesday.

Mrs. Jessup won the first set from Mme. Matthieu, making few errors and never yielding to the French woman's attacks. The second set was a long drawn out affair, with Mme. Mathieu [illegible] throughout. The third set was easy for the French woman as Mrs. Jessup missed many easy ones and lost nearly every opportunity for a k[illegible].

Golfers Lose Coin and Booze in Chicago Tilt

Chicago, June 4 (I.N.S.).—Two Chicago golfers who played the nineteenth hole ahead of the other eighteen today were bemoaning the loss of $400 and forty-eight quarts of alleged Scotch whiskey.

Daniel Davis, a business man, and Burns Berman, guest at the Morrison Hotel, started in Davis' car for the Oak Park Country Club to play golf. A highway police officer didn't like their driving and waved them to the curb.

He later told Magistrate Frank McKee he found forty-eight bottles of liquor in the car.

"Two hundred and costs each," said the magistrate.

The men paid and walked out—minus the liquor.

BLONDIN TO TRY SPEED IN LATONIA FEATURE

Latonia, Ky., June 4 (A.P.).—Blondin, which ran second in the Preakness, but was a disappointment in the Kentucky Derby a week later has arrived here to carry the Harry Paine Whitney colors in the Latonia Derby tomorrow. In the same car came Mrs. Payne Whitney's Navigator, also a candidate for the $50,000 classic. Jockey L. McAtee will have the mount on Blondin, and George Ellis is coming to ride Navigator. The latter has run some very creditable races and is rated especially good in muddy going.

Miles carried a steady pace throughout. He averaged his miles in approximately 5.30, running five in 27 minutes, 31 seconds.

ROCAP REMOVED FROM PENN. ATHLETIC COMMISSION

OFFICIAL IS DISMISSED BY PINCHOT

Friction With C. F. White Thought to Be Reason for Governor's Summary Act

Philadelphia, June 4. (A.P.).—Having refused to resign as chairman of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission William H. Rocap today received a letter from Governor Pinchot summarily removing him from the office.

The Governor announced his action at the executive offices in Harrisburg last night. He said it had been taken because of Mr. Rocap's statement after his "resignation" had been accepted and would not relinquish his office until he was "legally" ordered to do so.

"So that there may be no further misunderstanding as to your status," the Governor wrote Mr. Rocap "I hereby remove you as a member of the State Athletic Commission, effective immediately."

In his letter informing Rocap that his "resignation" had been accepted, Governor Pinchot said he had decided upon that course because of the commissioner's journalistic connection in another State.

Frank Weiner, Philadelphia real estate man, was appointed to succeed Mr. Rocap.

Friction between Mr. Rocap and Charles Fred White, negro member of the commission, is believed to have led to the chairman's dismissal.

Quatrain to Run at Belmont Park

New York, June 4 (I.N.S.)—Quatrain, sold by Frederick Johnson at public auction to Mrs. Payne Whitney for $13,500, will be started in the Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park.

Before being trained as a steeplechaser, it was announced today, the horse won the Louisiana Derby in 1925 and was the favorite for the Kentucky Derby of that year, but failed to get in the money. He became fractious this season and thrice has refused to leave the barrier, causing the stewards to bar him from overnight races for the rest of the Belmont meeting.

However, with the change of ownership, it is hoped that Quatrain will prove more amenable to discipline.

DEMPSEY STILL SEARCHES FOR TRAINING SITE

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 4 (A.P.). — Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, today hoped to make a final selection of the training camp site at which he will prepare for his coming titular bout next Fall with an opponent yet to be named.

Still showing the effects of his recent illness at Hot Springs, Ark., Dempsey said he "felt fine" and added that he was already gaining back some of the weight he has lost. He tips the scales at about 190 pounds and looks a little pale and drawn. A thirty-day rest for the champion is the program outlined by his manager, Gene Normile, before Dempsey returns here about July 1 to open his training camp.

Choice for a training camp site apparently has narrowed to two places, the Turkey Creek ranch of Spencer Penrose, local capitalist, and Camp Vigil, a nearby mountain resort, both within easy motoring distance of here.

FIGHTS I CAN'T FORGET by—TAD— America's Greatest Boxing Authority

McCoy Outpointed O'Brien

THIS is the sixty-fourth of a series of famous fights covered by Tad, the greatest sporting cartoonist and leading authority on pugilism in this country.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Tad, in reporting this fight, wrote the story in letter form, sending it to the late Bill Hicks, formerly sporting editor of the Evening Journal.)

Philadelphia, May 14, 1904.

DEAR BILL.—We all went over to Philadelphia on Saturday night to see the great McCoy-O'Brien fight and, on the dead, it was a pretty nifty go at that.

We had been reading in the papers about these two crafty gents for a couple of weeks, and on the train going over every sport had a different dope to go with that fight. There were a few bets made, you know, but it was almost even money that if there was a knockout the Kid would be the punk to land it.

Finally the bell rang and the men stepped to the centre. McCoy was as cool as an ice cream sandwich and as expressionless as a frankfurter. O'Brien, on the other hand, was all to the jumps; he seemed dead anxious to get around, and on his face was one of those smiles; you know the kind—well, they don't rub off or anything like that.

He smothered McCoy with a lot of lefts and rights and had the Kid ducking as fast as he could to keep away from a few. It was a fast clip, and looked as though McCoy would never be able to go at such a pace. The latter was cool at that, and seemed to be saying, "Just a minute, kid; I'll be there."

McCoy certainly was outclassed as the bell rang, and O'Brien's rooters almost tore the roof off the place with cheers.

EVERY dog has his day, however, Bill, and in the next McCoy's came. The gong dinged for round two and O'Brien was up in a jiffy, wearing the old smile and going after McCoy as though he intended to put a stop to his career as a mixer right away. He rushed the pale face to a corner and proceeded to remove the Kid's dome as fast as he could. Something happened, however, while O'Brien was at work, and the smile came off. He kind of stopped thinking that McCoy was all in and a slow one. Yes, things had changed; O'Brien had a different view after that little mix. McCoy just dug a right about a foot into O'Brien's rathskeller, and lo, the scene shifted.

O'Brien stopped jumping around, his face wore a worried look and both his hands were busy as could be blocking what the Kid was sending his way. They were coming fast, too. What O'Brien stopped in those rallies would be rather hard to relate. McCoy's left was the busy hand jolting the Quaker City gent hard on the ear and nose. When he wanted to change it he'd shoot the right up and O'Brien curled up like a pretzel to smother it.

He went down from a right in one of these mixes, but was up in a jiffy, and slamming back hard and fast. O'Brien slipped to the floor once more. It was only for a second, though, but it made McCoy and his friends feel fine, and maybe he didn't try with that deadly right for O'Brien's jaw.

The fight looked a little different after that round, and a good many of the fellows were wondering whether O'Brien would go the limit with McCoy or not. The O'Brien men didn't have a whole lot to say, but seemed to think that Jack would come through during the rest and hand the Kid something for that body punch he stopped.

In the third O'Brien came up with a more business-like look on his face, and a little more respect for McCoy. He started to force again, jumping in and out and trying to get over a right on McCoy's jaw. He was rushing the Kid harder now than ever before, and seemed willing to take any old chance at all. McCoy was using his left hook to good advantage here, and had O'Brien's right ear cut and bleeding. A few more lefts to the mouth cut that portion of Mr. O'Brien's frontispiece, but he didn't seem to mind it at all, he was willing to take more and never stopped going after McCoy.

French and Stein, finishing the morning round one up, couldn't stand prosperity and were outplayed throughout the afternoon by Whitcombe and Jolley, the English pair. The latter squares the match with a winning 4 on the first hole in the afternoon.

They went to the turn with a best ball of 36 against 39 for the Americans and were 3 up at this point, thanks to winning 4's at the twenty-fifth and twenty-seventh.

Faced with defeat, French and Stein rallied after the turn and, with successive 4's at the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth, halved the former and won the latter, making them one down. However, the Britons again took command at the thirtieth, winning three holes in a row and clinching the match. The cards:

HARVARD HOPES TO BEAT H. C.

Return Game at Worcester Tomorrow; Eagles Will Visit Fordham

By GEORGE GRIMM

George Grimm

Two big college baseball attractions are on the card for tomorrow and although both are away from home much interest is centred on the outcomes. Harvard will be the big noise in this section, playing the Holy Cross a return game at New [illegible] ball park, [illegible] Field, Worcester. The other game will be Boston College and Fordham meeting in their second game at New York.

Worcester baseball fans and Holy Cross students should turn out to give the Crimson and Purple teams a crowded ball yard. Although the Holy Cross nine defeated Harvard in their first [illegible] at Cambridge, Coach Fred Mitchell and the Crimson followers are [illegible] pleased with their chances on the diamond.

Raymond Dobens of Nashua, N. H., will do the [illegible] for the Holy Cross against Harvard, while the crack Worcester outfit will face the benders of Frank Cutts, the Providence kid, or Bob Puffer. These two flingers are going good. Cutts, on Memorial Day, gave Brown University but two hits.

While the Crimson and Purple are doing battle in the Heart of the Commonwealth, Boston College will be taking the Fordham lads. This New York contest will be a fighting chance that the boys from Newton will have to regain the trail on the road to the eastern championship.

Coach Jack Slattery and a squad of fifteen of the Eagles best ball tossers [illegible] Boston today by boat [illegible] the Jesuit rivals of New York. [illegible] were here on Patriots' Day [illegible] B. C. to [illegible] the New Yorkers [illegible] victory in errors.

Slattery is [illegible] to take a chance and send [illegible] to the hill against [illegible]. The left-handed [illegible] is going good, with a fine assortment of curves, with both speed to burn and a mighty fine slow ball.

IN FOR A HOT SPELL

Jack Slattery, B. C. baseball coach, said he'd wear his overcoat until the Eagles downed Holy Cross. H. C. won the opener and kept the coat on Slats. Now he'll have to wear it until June 17 at least. He's hoping for cool weather and a B. C. comeback. It would be tough to carry the "blanket" all Summer.

New York Ready for B. C. Invasion

New York, June 3.—More than 200 Boston College men are expected to [illegible] the [illegible] game at Fordham [illegible] on Saturday, when [illegible] Fordham University. After [illegible] the Boston College players will be the guests of the Boston College [illegible] of New York at its first annual dinner at the Catholic Club.

The [illegible] members and other Boston College men will meet at Fordham in the afternoon, where they will [illegible] the field under the direction of Raymond T. Cahill, '18, who will act as cheerleader. The dinner will take place at 7 o'clock under the chairmanship of James P. W[illegible], '06, assisted by Bartholomew P. Coyne, '18, William A. P. Fitzgerald, [illegible], Raymond T. Cahill, '18 and Frederick J. Leary, '2[illegible].

The Very Rev. James H. Dolan, S. J., president of Boston College; the Very Rev. William J. Duane, S. J., president of Fordham University; the Rev. John Mattimore, S. J., faculty director of athletics at B. C., and Richard S. [illegible], president of the Boston College alumni association, have signified their intention to be present at the dinner.

All Boston College men who wish to attend the dinner may make reservations with Alfred J. [illegible], secretary, 30 West 16th Street, N. Y. C.

QUICK RELIEF FOR SORE, TIRED FEET

"After a long hot day on my feet I run for Tiz," writes a city salesman. "No matter how my feet ache and burn, Tiz draws out all the pain and I'm as good as new."

Tiz is magical. Acts right off. Stops the pain of corns, bunions, callouses, sore spots.

A few cents buys a box of Tiz at any drug or department store. Have feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired.

Morgan Proves Class by Stopping Sullivan

Tod was in the sixth round when Sullivan's manager tossed a towel over the top of the ropes while Steve was taking a thorough whipping from a vastly superior fighter.

The next thing on was fairly good for the [illegible]. He knocked him down in the first round and again in the second for nine counts. Two hooks to the jaw caused both upsets. The rest of the way he pelted a game veteran with left hooks and snappy rights that simply smothered him. He had no chance except a one-punch accident and that punch never came. The crowd saw a real champion in Morgan. Class stuck out all over him. He had everything.

Morgan punched hard with both hands. He boxed beautifully, had glittering speed of foot and was adept at blocking and head slipping.

The show was run for the benefit of the [illegible] Family Hospital. The promoters estimated the attendance at 20,000 and the receipts at $[illegible]000.

Morgan weighed 127½ pounds and Sullivan 12[illegible]½.

Jack Delaney, the Bridgeport star, won on a technical knockout over Detroit Tommy Burns after one minutes and 15 seconds of fighting in the second round.

THE TREASURE OF
A better cigarette my hearties!

All hands ashore, men! Man the gig. . . and pull a lively oar for the nearest cigarette-counter.

The booty is at hand. The long-sought treasure of a better cigarette.

A cooler cigarette! As cool as the sweetest breeze that ever kissed the Mediterranean.

A smoother cigarette! As smooth as the gentlest calm in the lee of a South Sea Isle.

A more fragrant cigarette. As pleasing as the prettiest lass that ever brightened a wharf to greet returning sailorman.

A better cigarette, my worthies!... such as every mate and man has been hankering for.

It is a COOLER cigarette. The heavier and coarser leaf has been discarded for hand selected lighter and finer leaf—requiring less draught and bringing less heat to the lips.

It is a SMOOTHER and MILDER cigarette. A new day method takes out all harshness in the tobacco, tempering the balance to gentle perfection.

It is a more FRAGRANT and PLEASINGLY GRATIFYING cigarette. Only the pick of the choicest Turkish and domestic tobaccos is used in OLD GOLD, chosen and blended by old masters to bring out the utmost in aromatic smoking quality.

RUDEN IS NOW THE LEADING PACE-MAKER

Carl Ruden, veteran Revere motor pacer, will round out next month 30 years in the bike racing game.

Ruden has attained top rank in his specialty, the pacing of bicycle stars, having handled many of the best in the world during his 30 years as a pacer.

Carl Ruden.

He started in as a boy at road racing in Manchester, N. H., and his aptitude at all branches of the game brought him swiftly to the pinnacle. During his long career he has met with unusual success, and now, after three decades, his star is a long way from setting.

Witness his last two races, which he won, pacing Bobby Grassin, the European sensation who just arrived on our shores, and the veteran Frank Keenan. Ruden is handling Grassin in the same way that he did Victor Linart, the Belgian star in 1923, when he brought him to the top.

As a developer of racers he is unexcelled, for his keen perception and unerring judgment mark him as the ideal tutor for the young and inexperienced riders. Many stars owe their success to the training received under Ruden.

At the present time he stands out as one of the leading pacemakers in this country today.

Jim Maloney Signs to Battle Carter

Jim Maloney, South Boston heavyweight, has been signed to battle Carl Carter, Cuban heavyweight, in a ten-round bout at a Commercial A. C. show at Mechanics Building on June 14. The bout was planned two weeks ago, but Maloney refused to go through with it. Since then Jim has changed his mind.

Terry Parker of the North End and Steve Smith of Bridgeport will clash in the semi-final of eight frames.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN
VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR
SAMUEL CURTIS, Jr., Radio Editor

Baseball scores are broadcast at 6:10 P. M. by WEEI; at 7:30 P. M. by WNAC; and at 7:40 P. M. by WBZ. This is a daily feature with each of these stations.

PERSHING TO ATTEND INDUCTION AT LYNN

Because he has obtained assurance that Gen. John J. Pershing and Asst. Secretary of War Hanford MacNider could both be in Lynn the night of June 7, Col. Henry A. Silsbee II., commander of Lynn Post 6, American Legion, informed Legion Department Headquarters [illegible] had been decided to change the date of the big outdoor [illegible] of almost 1,000 Legionnaires on the General Electric athletic field [illegible] Lynn from June 10 to June 7.

Close Stations

When the receiver is located very close to a broadcasting station, difficulty may be experienced in bringing in distant stations near the wave-length of the local station. In [illegible] cases the second coil itself is probably picking up much of the signal without filtering action of the radio frequency stage. To remedy, line the inside of the cabinet with thin sheet copper and connect the sheet to ground. Sometimes this condition can be materially improved by turning the whole receiver so that the pick-up of the second coil is at a minimum. It is advisable to determine this position with the antenna disconnected and the radio frequency tube unlighted but still in its socket.

Patience

Heinz Pure Vinegars are aromatic and abounding in flavor because of the slow, careful, painstaking way in which they are made. Patience is the watchword. You cannot hurry good vinegar along.

The vinegars are mellowed and the flavor developed by aging in wood for more than a year.

There is no other way to develop such flavor. There is no other way to make such vinegar. Buy vinegar by name, and not by guess.

BUDGET WILL FORECAST THE FUTURE

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

BUDGET TALK—NO. 68

By MARTHA LEE

DO you long to know what fate has in store for you and do you hover in the distance like a moth round a flame, eager to challenge fate, yet hesitating? What is it that holds you back? Isn't it really a fear of what the future may have in store?

Perhaps we have reached the age when the optimism of youth has gone, and nothing seems to stretch ahead but an interminable round of work, worry, responsibility and sacrifice. Isn't it true that in nine cases out of ten the reason for our foreboding is a lack of finances to protect us against misfortune?

I don't mean to say that money is the cure of all the ills of the world but the dollar is an excellent friend and an accumulation of them protects one against many of fate's hardest bumps.

The next question is how to accumulate these large, round iron men, and of course you know that I am going to say in capital letters that "BUDGET" is the answer.

As this costs you nothing but ten minutes a day of your time, you are not risking a great deal in sending for the budget form.

I think the fact that many people feel that a budget is full of complicated arithmetic prevents them from starting to spend by a plan, or to keep a budget. A nine-year-old child could do all the arithmetic necessary to keep an intelligent budget.

The important thing is to have a reliable pattern by which to cut your budget. I am waiting to cut a budget pattern for you that will fit your individual family needs.

There is no reason why Budget shouldn't start right to work for you rounding up the dollars, if it's only a few at a time, that are going to insure a prosperous future for you and your dear ones.

Why not make up your mind today to secure the same benefits from Budget that hundreds of your friends and neighbors have already secured? So far, we have enrolled more than 11,000 earnest Budgeters. Why wait a day longer to join this prosperous family?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Mrs. P. J. K. asks for a budget for $25 a week. Pays $3.50 a week rent, gas, etc., insurance, $1; piano, $2.50, and $13 a week for food.

You do not tell me how many you have in your family, so I hesitate to criticize your food budget. With a budget for three in the family for $25 the food allotment should not exceed $8, and this should include your husband's business lunches. Budget will also give you $2.50 for savings. Of course insurance is a form of savings. Five dollars weekly is allowed by budget for shelter, including business carfares; $3.50 for clothing, $3.50 for operating which must include heat, gas and laundry, and $1.50 for personal, out of which comes the piano payments.

You will have to use the $1.50 left from your savings after paying your insurance to add to personal to cover the piano at present. This leaves nothing for the other items which usually come under personal. With your food allowance as it is [illegible] personal allotment [illegible] have very little left for clothing and operating.

Mr. F. O. N. makes $75 a week and is anxious to budget intelligently, as he has a son entering college in two years. Asks what the proper savings allotment should be, for [illegible].

I would suggest $12 weekly for shelter, including business carfares; $[illegible] for food, including all meals taken in and out of the home, $[illegible] for operating, including heat, light, telephone, laundry and gas and all services; $10.25 for clothing and $17 weekly for savings, including insurance and $10 weekly towards the college, and $10.25 for personal, including doctor's and dentist's bills, papers, magazines, amusements, vacations, luxuries—everything, in fact, not included under the other headings.

I WONDER WHAT THE FUTURE HOLDS?
BUDGET

Do you wonder what the future holds for you? Consult Budget. He will tell you

How to Succeed in Keeping Outgo in Bounds

I would suggest making an early application for some kind of scholarship in the college your son is planning to enter and after the first year have the boy help himself along by outside work for two or three hours daily. Even in cases where this is not necessary a college education assumes its real importance in a boy's eyes if he makes some personal sacrifice to secure it.

Thank you, Mrs. H. O. G., for your lovely letter. I am so glad you have enjoyed the budget talks and have benefited by them. You do not tell me whether the $25 or $30 you receive weekly is a housekeeping allowance, but I judge that it is.

It will be necessary to know the total family income to budget it to take care of the expense of the home you are buying.

As you probably know 20 per cent. of your total family income can be devoted to shelter, including your husband's business carfares. In your case this shelter includes the interest on the mortgage and taxes and repairs on your house.

Twenty-five per cent. of your income can be devoted to food including your husband's lunches, fifteen per cent for operating, out of which you must lay aside the coal money besides current bills for heat, light, laundry and telephone; fifteen per cent for clothing and ten per cent for savings, out of which should come the money you pay annually against the principal of your mortgage, and your insurance.

Your personal allotment gets fifteen per cent. of the total income, out of which comes doctor's and dentist's bills, magazines, papers, church and club dues, amusements, vacations and luxuries. As soon as I get further particulars I will be glad to figure these all out for you.

Mrs. B. O. S. asks to budget $40 weekly which has to care for a $2 Christmas Club payment. With $40 and three in the family, there is no reason why you should not save this $2 and in addition put $2 weekly in the savings bank or in some form of insurance. Your budget should line up this way: Rent $[illegible] including business carfares, food, $[illegible] clothing, $6 operating, $6 savings, $4 including the Christmas Club money, and personal $3.

THE ALL-AROUND BRAIN

WITH gratitude I can say that all through life I have had good friends, both men and women. I have tried to have. I have tried to develop many-sidedness, so that all sorts of things, all sorts of people should be interesting. God gave me a happy disposition and a genuine love for humanity, and loving friends have surrounded me always.

There have been the other sort, too! Jealous hearts; envious hearts. But even these can be disarmed by tolerance and good-humor. Once a jealous woman, watching me enjoy each one of a wide circle in turn, remarked:

"If I were you, I would not be taken in by the Princess' liking for you." (I was Crown Princess then.) "She treats you all like so many jumping jacks—for her own amusement."

But my good friend smiled and answered: "If that is so, I am surprised to find how much fun it is being a jumping jack. I am delighted to have her pull my strings and make me caper!"

So far from my jealous friend being right in her assumption that I was using people merely for my own entertainment, I was helping them enjoy themselves. The student who can only discuss Nietzsche has a thin time of it unless someone has a Nietzsche side and is willing to show it. The domestic woman is pleased when I make a cake with her.

The athlete is pleased that I take an interest in horses and can go riding with the best equestrian among them. With some other friend I will plant a rosebush. With a fifth I will talk of plans for a house. With a sixth I will discuss medical subjects, not in scientific fashion perhaps, but with what knowledge I gleaned from hospital work in wartime.

I was not playing a part. I was really interested and enjoying each one with my all-around brain.

As Queen, my all-around brain has helped me greatly. It is far better, I truly believe, to know something about many things, than everything about just one thing.

They tell me that in America "everyone has a wireless"—only I believe you call them radios. Splendid! That must be the best of ways to get the all-around brain. In other words, to learn something of everything.

Doctor Reed Tells How Surroundings Affect Health

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

HAVE you ever stopped to consider to what extent your health or even your life depends upon your harmonious adjustment to your surroundings?

This is what the scientists call "adaptation to environment" and it means a lot to everybody.

In fact, H. Crichton Miller says, in effect, that the whole art of living is adaptation to the environment.

Man is both, with certain qualities, physical and mental; throughout his whole life he is exposed to an environment which makes certain demands on him. His adaptation is measured by the extent to which he adjusts his desires to these demands and the degree of the internal harmony and social efficiency which he maintains.

The three great groups of unsuccessful adaptations are the neurotic, the delinquent and the insane.

The first of these is the most significant to the ordinary person. The process of adaptation is essentially evolutionary.

That is to say, that the duty of man is to evolve from an instinct-driven mechanism to a divine being. Every step he takes is marked by some extension of his conscious purpose, and a compensatory restriction of direct instinctive reaction. However, purpose is not in itself dynamic, for the only dynamic is instinct. Purpose is the instrument with which a man modifies or sublimates his instinctive responses, and applies his instinctive energy to some end that has value for society.

Human purpose may be selfish or altruistic. The selfish man aims at pleasure, the altruistic man aims at reality. Between these two principles lies the whole scale of ethical values with resultant effects upon both health and vitality.

Adaptation is a constant succession of choices between advance and retreat. A patient suffering from adolescent (dementia praecox) insanity is one who has either chosen or, by inherent defects, has been forced to retreat. It is also a choice between growth and stagnation.

The man who lives in a net of rules and sanctions is one who refuses to accept growth. The result of trying to bring life to a standstill is a psychoneurosis that may take the form of hysteria, anxiety, obsession or in a fear psychosis, and the penalty for thus retreating from life is insanity.

The choice is also between reality and mere pleasure. The alcoholic finds reality too painful and retreats into a chemically produced state of bliss, called euphoria. Much money is spent on treating alcoholism that would be saved if the basis of the problem were attacked, i. e., the reason why the drunkard who is not made a drunkard by physical defects has chosen to succumb to the pleasure principle. Alcoholism [illegible] is an expression of unsuccessful adaptation.

Adaptation also involves conflict between heroism and cowardice. In the war, shell shock patients (hysterical paralysis) came to the doctors as well as malingerers. The malingerer was a coward because his refusal to adapt was conscious. The neurotic could not be called a coward because the cause of his failure to adapt was unconscious. He was, however, a coward in the psychological sense, though not in the ethical.

This difference is always present in the failures of civil life. It is useless to condemn a man as a coward if he retreats from unconscious motives. [illegible] remedy is to discover what these motives are.

All these failures of adaptation may be given the single name of regression. To regress is to react in an earlier, more primitive way than that which is suitable, whether this way be childish or savage.

These principles apply to you and to every member of your family and simply mean "adapt yourself to your surroundings or change the surroundings for better ones!

Mrs. Beeckman on Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Mr. and Mrs. Brown and family are leaving a town where they have resided for a number of years. Mrs. Brown wishes to know whether she and her family are to go around and bid goodbye to their friends and acquaintances or is it the friends who are to come to Mrs. Brown? To me it seems easiest for latter to do so. What is the polite thing to do?

MRS. BROWN.

EITHER procedure is correct. That is, Mr. and Mrs. Brown may call on their friends to say goodbye or they may call on Mr. and Mrs. Brown.

It is natural that the close friends of the family will want to come to say goodbye, and probably will arrange goodbye parties. It is even correct for them to telephone to Mr. and Mrs. Brown to see if they may come at some specially appointed time.

The friends who are not so close may call to say their goodbye, but if they and acquaintances don't, it is correct for the departing family to call on these less close friends.

For convenience in making calls of this kind, the "P. P. C." cards are used. These initials, as you know, stand for "pour prendre congé," to take leave.

Martha Lee's Recipes

GREETINGS, everybody!

Outside of salt, flour, sugar and butter, I don't know of anything on my pantry shelves that I call on more frequently than the molasses can. I find that for my small family molasses in cans is most convenient, and moreover, by asking for my favorite brand I am always sure of uniform quality.

Here are a few favorite recipes calling for molasses. I am sure I don't need to remind you that where molasses is used the cooking processes must be slower.

CORN FLAKE PUDDING.

4 cups corn flakes.
4 cups milk.
2-3 cup molasses.
1 level teaspoon salt.
1 level teaspoon cinnamon.
1 egg.

Put corn flakes in buttered pudding dish, beat egg, add molasses, salt, cinnamon and milk. Pour over corn flakes. Mix well. Bake slowly 2½ hours. Nice served with cream.

COCOANUT CUP CAKES.

1 egg.
½ cup sugar
½ cup molasses.
½ cup water
½ cup shortening, melted.
1¾ cups pastry flour.
½ teaspoon soda.
½ teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon cinnamon.
½ teaspoon ginger.
¼ teaspoon cloves.
¾ cup cocoanut.

Beat egg, add sugar, molasses, water and melted shortening. Sift flour, soda, salt and spices. Add cocoanut. Put in greased muffin pans and sprinkle with cocoanut. Bake in hot oven.

FOAMY SAUCE.

1 egg.
½ cup powdered sugar.
½ teaspoon vanilla.
½ cup whipped cream or
1½ tablespoons milk.

Beat egg white until stiff, beat in gradually the powdered sugar. When smooth and light add vanilla and well beaten yolk, then stir in cream or milk.

CREAMY SAUCE.

1 cup brown sugar.
4 tablespoons cream.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream the butter, add sugar gradually and continue creaming, add cream gradually and vanilla.

BROWNIES.

1-3 cup butter.
1-3 cup powdered sugar.
1-3 cup molasses.
1 egg, well beaten
⅞ cup bread flour.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 cup walnuts, cut in pieces.

Mix the ingredients in order given, bake in small shallow fancy cake tins. Garnish top of each cake with a half a nut. Bake in hot oven.

That's all for Martha for today!

'THE RED LAMP,' FINE MYSTERY STORY

Absorbing Serial by the Author of 'The Bat' Full of Thrills

he was found, and discovered that there were blood-stains on it near the hem.

"I'm going to ask you something," I said to Halliday. "A man dies of heart failure, and as he falls strikes his head, so that it bleeds. He lies there, from some time in the evening until seven o'clock in the morning. There wouldn't be much blood, would there?"

"Hardly any I should say."

"And none in this location, I imagine."

I showed it to him, and he looked at me curiously.

"I'm afraid I don't get it, Skipper," he said. "You mean, he moved, afterwards?"

"If you want to know exactly what I mean, I believe the poor old chap was knocked down, that he got up and managed to dispose of something he had in his hand, something he didn't want seen, and that after that his heart failed."

He picked up the dressing gown and carried it to the window.

"Tell me about it," he said quietly.

As neither one of us knew anything about the heart, or what occurs when a fatal seizure attacks it, it is possible Halliday is right. That is, that feeling ill he got up, crumpled the letter in his hand, turned out the desk light, and fell. But that he recovered himself and managed to drag himself to his feet again, when the full force of the seizure came, and he fell once more, not to rise.

Murder or What?

"There is no real reason to believe that he was not alone," he said. "Nor even that he 'saw something,' as Mrs. Livingstone intimates."

But the letter I had found in the drawer interests him. He has made a copy of it, and taken it home to [illegible].

"I appeal to you to consider the enormity of the idea. Your failure to comprehend my attitude to it, however, makes me believe that you may be tempted to go on with it. In that case I shall feel it my duty, not only to go to the police, but to [illegible] society in general.

"I realize fully the unpleasantness of my own situation; even, if you are consistent, its danger. But—"

"But—what?" said Halliday. "'But I shall do what I have threatened, if you go on with it.'" He glanced up at me. "It doesn't sound like sheep killing, does it?"

"No," I was obliged to admit. "It does not."

July 6th.

I am in a fair way to go to jail if things keep on as they have been going. And not only for sheep-killing. If we have not had a tragedy here, certainly today there is every indication of it. And with the fatality which has attended me for the past week or so, I have managed to get myself involved in it.

Last night a youth named Carroway, sworn in by Starr a few days ago as deputy constable, was assigned the highroad behind our property as his beat. He was armed against the sheep-killer with a gun, which was found this morning in the hedge not far from our gates.

Nothing is known of his movements from 9 o'clock, when he went on duty, until a few minutes after midnight, when he appeared breathless on the town slip, minus his rifle, and jumping into a motor launch moored at the float, started off into the bay.

Peter Geiss, an old fisherman, was smoking his pipe on the slip at the time, but Peter is deaf, and, although Carroway shouted something, the old man did not hear it. There is, however, an intermediate clew here, for on his way Carroway had run into the Bennett House and told the night clerk there to awaken Greenough and get him to our float, that the sheep-killer had taken a boat there and was somewhere out on the water.

Professor in Bad

Greenough appears to have lost no time. He threw an overcoat over his pajamas, took his revolver, and commandeering a car in the street was on our pier before Carroway had been on the water ten minutes. And here, with that fatality which has recently pursued me, he found me returning from the float!

There are times when misfortune apparently picks up some hapless individual as her victim and, perhaps for the good of his soul, hammers him on this side and on that until he himself begins to think he has deserved it. He is guilty of something; he knows not what.

I was a guilty man as I faced Greenough! And yet the scene must have had its elements of humor. I, rather shaken already with the night air, my teeth rattling, and this ghostly figure suddenly appearing on the run-way above me and turning my knees to water; a terror which only changed in quality when this ghost instructed me to put up my hands.

But I knew the voice, and I managed as debonair a manner as was possible under the circumstances.

"Nothing in them but a flashlight," I said. "However, if you insist——"

He seemed to hesitate. Then he laughed a little, not too pleasantly, and came down the run way to me.

"Out rather late, aren't you, Mr. Porter?" he asked. It was my turn to hesitate.

"I came down to pull the canoe up onto the float," I said finally. "Mrs. Porter thought the sea was rising."

Carroway Gone

"Sounds quiet enough to me," he retorted and turning on his flash, he ran it over the surface of the water, which was as still as a mill-pond, and onto the canoe, which lay bottom-up and still dripping, on the float.

It is indicative of the whole situation, I think, that he lighted the flash. He was no longer lurking in the dark, waiting for the motor boat to drive the marauder ashore. That marauder, in the shape of a shivering professor of English literature, slightly unbalanced mentally, was before him.

Then he seemed to be listening, and knowing the story this morning, I daresay he was listening, for the beat of the motor engine. There was no sound, and this I imagine puzzled him, as it is puzzling the entire community today. I am myself not particularly observant, and my testimony I might give would, under the circumstances, be discredited in advance. But my own impression is that there was the sound of an engine from somewhere on the bay as I crossed the lawn, and that it had ceased before I reached the water's edge.

Greenough was frankly puzzled. He had, one perceives, a problem on his hands. He wanted Carroway to come in and identify me, for without that identification he was helpless. And somewhere out on the water was Carroway, possibly with a stalled engine. He put his hands to his mouth and called:

"Hi! Bob!" he yelled. "Bob."

But there was no answer, except that Halliday came running out and asked what the trouble was. Greenough was thoroughly irritated, he lapsed into a sulky, watchful silence, and offered no objection when I shiveringly suggested that I go back to my bed. I left them both there, Halliday preparing to row out and locate the launch if possible and come back to the lodge.

The professor sinks deeper and deeper into the mire of guilt which seems to surround him. Read of his troubles in tomorrow's installment of "The Red Lamp."

Are Men Anxious to Please Women? By Beatrice Fairfax

THE CAVE MAN'S WOOING — IN THE DAYS OF CHIVALRY — FIFTY YEARS AGO — AND AS IT IS TODAY

IN this day of complacent sheiks it's refreshing to receive a letter as sane and sound as the following:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"You have written a number of articles telling how girls can attract and hold men. But never have I seen an article on how men can win and hold girls.

"The men are—most of them—so conceited that they think girls are head over heels in love with them when they are only 'kidding' them along.

"I am twenty-eight, and an the inside of a number of lov fairs among my friends. It is men who pursue the girls—or m them, as the modern saying ge and not the girls who run after m

"But it would do my heart g if you would write an article w might throw a little light on t subject for some of the dear w who are so 'annoyed' by the a tions of girls.

"I can't understand the atti often taken, that a woman alw worries so about pleasing a m when it is really the man who is dashing around trying to please the woman. STEVE."

Even in this topsy-turvy age Steve, certain fundamental traits of human nature remain unchanged and unchanging.

The lover the 1926 if he is truly in love, pursues the girl of his choice as eagerly as his ancestor of the Stone Age sought to capture his mate. One wonders whether the maiden of that age did not deliberately bedeck herself with furs and flowers, red berries in her hair and an alluring smile in secret hope of being kidnaped for a wife by the bravest caveman she knew.

Of course, every girl, because she is human, hopes to attract men and eventually,' her man. But she is generally successful just in the proportion that she gives indirect, not direct expression to this interest. The woman who is successful in love attracts, fascinates and holds masculine thrilled devotion through feminine charm. No wonder then that girls eagerly study charm!

Quite aside from the absorbing interest in love, this is an age of frank companionship between men and women. Today girls are educated, efficient, free, athletic. Men and women are equals, friends and comrades.

A conspicuous minority of modern men who are a little weak headed, mistake the gay "kidding" and frank companionship of Miss 1926 for infatuated love. Less than this is usually required to turn a mediocre, complacent young man into a conceited bore.

A conspicuous minority of flappers, likewise not overstrong in their heads, misuse modern freedom by brazenly running after any man who attracts their passing fancy. This open pursuit repels the average man. And it adds to the flattered conceit of the shieks and cake-eaters.

Man still admires feminine sweetness, goodness, modesty, beauty and charm. He seeks those qualities in his helpmate. Woman still studies to attract the man who represents in her eyes, strength, honor and chivalry.

"Wives Adrift," a Great Modern Story With a Boston Setting

By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER XXII.

CHARLOTTE scarcely closed her eyes that night when she returned to her apartment after Gypsy Adair had given her the written confession that cleared her forever of the slaying of Lawrence Hill.

The reaction was so great, the relief so tremendous, that she l staring into the darkness with e wide and burning.

Over and over again, she rehears the scene of the events leading t to the shooting of Hill, fitting th together with the facts that Gyps husband had set forth in his c fession.

The man had hidden in the garden, had witnessed that last degrading scene between Hill and herself. Her cheeks burned at the thought. She recalled now that she had sent away the dog that afternoon to be clipped. That accounted for Jim Freeman's having been able to slip, unobserved, through the garden and beat a retreat without difficulty, after the fatal shot was fired.

When she had flung the gun from her and had fallen face downward on the divan, she had almost handed the weapon to Hill's murderer. She shuddered at the thought. How easy it had been for him to reach through the window and pick up the gun, while Hill stood with his back turned, looking down at her and laughing in his cruel, mirthless fashion, at her distress.

Free at Last

Ah yes, he had deserved the bullet, if ever a man did!

And now she, his slave, was free—free, both of his evil will that poisoned her life, and of the suspicion of having contrived his death.

The barrier that had been a flaming sword barring her in decent circles, was down. She need no longer shrink and hide from people. She need not be suspected as a murderess. The world could know that she had been only the victim of an unfortunate circumstance.

Once again she was faced with her two alternatives.

Her husband—or Gregory Thomas?

Her reason said clearly: Thomas. He had trusted her, believed in her, was ready to risk everything for her—even if she lived always under the cloud of suspicion.

But her heart whispered: Manning. She loved him. It would be worth something just to live under his roof, to be within sound of his voice, perhaps to touch his hand.

When the light of dawn came through Charlotte's solitary window, she closed her eyes for the first time, her choice still unmade.

She was awakened some time later by a brisk knock on her apartment door, and, leaping up to open it, found Gypsy, dressed for the street and looking unwontedly fresh for such an early hour.

"Hustle into some rags and come with me," she ordered. "I don't want to waste any time about this business."

"W—where are we going?" Charlotte stammered.

"To the police. I told you last night that I was going to see this thing though, and look to it that you get a square deal. You poor kid, you're too much of a shrinking violet. You need a guardian, and that ex-husband of yours is the very guy, to my way of thinking."

Charlotte dressed and in fifteen minutes the two girls were on their way to her letter box. She extracted an envelope bearing a foreign stamp, opened it and read the enclosure.

"Gee," she looked up at Charlotte and there was awe in her bright black eyes. "don't it beat all the way things work out? See this." She held up the letter. "It's from some missionary guy down in Brazil. He's breaking the news that Jim's croaked!"

"Oh!" Charlotte's exclamation was uncertain. After what Gypsy had told her, she didn't know whether to offer condolences or congratulations.

The little dancer turned away a moment.

"It ain't that I'm glad, exactly," she said huskily, "though Jim never was any account. I'm sorry he had to go and die. It must be awful when you've lived like Jim has. But I'm glad he's gone before the rope got the confession. Sometimes they send down to one of these countries and get you, don't they?"

"I believe they can extradite for murder," Charlotte agreed gravely.

Charlotte Vindicated

"Then everything's fine," Gypsy brightened. "You'll be fixed without getting poor old Jim into any more trouble."

At Charlotte's suggestion, they went to Gregory Thomas' office and placed the confession into his hands. He read it and looked at Charlotte with a smile that held a world of sadness.

"I would never need this to convince me of your innocence—[illegible] who knows or loves you would!"

Two days later, the newspapers blazoned the real story of the Hill slaying to the world.

Charlotte was vindicated, gloriously so.

* * *

Charlotte sat in her apartment overlooking Commonwealth avenue. She was at home again. Once more she had taken her rightful place before the world as David Manning's wife.

Winter was receding before the approach of Spring. [illegible] Charlotte felt in tune with the season. There was something akin to springtime in her heart. It was good to be in Manning's home again, to be acquitted forever in the eyes of the world of the killing of Lawrence Hill, to find a refuge after her stormy flight.

But there lingered in her heart darkness and cold that the sunlight of her husband's presence could not drive out.

She knew that Manning neither quite trusted her nor respected her. When he had come to her the day following Gypsy Adair's remarkable revelation and had repeated his request that she return to his household, she had yielded.

But, though Manning treated her with every courtesy and consideration, she felt the chasm that yawned between them. She did not ask herself whether he still loved her. She knew him well enough to realize that in his heart the doubt of her still lingered. To him, she was still the wife who had betrayed him . . .

Gregory's Letter

"Dear Charlotte," Gregory Thomas had written.

"I have your sweet letter of thanks. Dear child, I did nothing. It was my pleasure to see that the account of your complete innocence in the Hill case was widely circulated. It was such a splendid example of the potential disaster of a miscarriage of justice—of the unreliability of circumstantial evidence. Quite a fetish of mine, by the way, and in this case, the basis for a whale of a good yarn.

"Thank you for your sweet invitation to dine with your husband and yourself. I am sorry that I must decline, as I am leaving at the close of this court session for a holiday in the Bermudas.

"Oh, Charlotte, tender hearted as always, you gave me my answer in the gentlest way. I wish you every happiness, my dear, and should you ever need me in the future, remember that I am

"Always your friend

"GREGORY THOMAS."

What a friend he had been, what a [illegible] in the dark days! How she wished that she could have given him the love that she had for Manning, a love that she could be sure was returned. Gregory Thomas cared in spite of the past. He never had believed that Hill was her lover.

Making of a Husband

By Ann Lisle

"OH, NO," cried Dr. Willis aghast. "She would be so hurt to think that she's been making her oil mayonnaise and giving me the tomatoes sliced and with their skins on all these years!"

Tears welled to my eyes. In those few words the precious old man had given me such a clear picture of himself. The tomatoes became symbols of his selflessness—his flawless and almost tragic unselfishness. I could see him coming down the years doing gentle penance because once when he was a rash boy there had been a brief young love that had been outside the law.

Somehow I could see the old doctor making up Berthe's wrongs to all women—including the woman who kept his house—and kept it obviously to suit herself and not the doctor.

I leaned forward accusingly as I demanded:

"Don't you ever think of yourself?"

"Why of course—whenever I have time," Dr. Willis said groping for my meaning.

"And when do you have time?" I demanded.

"Why—what—whatever do you mean, Mrs. Harrison?" asked the old man.

"Could you call me Anne?"

"I do in my heart," said Dr. Willis. "I have ever since I first saw you—ministering to sick souls as well as to—frozen bodies."

"Well, then, if I'm Anne to you, to me you're another friend to boss around. And I want you to stop distributing automobiles as souvenirs, and to have your tomatoes fixed the way you like, not the way your housekeeper happens to do them, and to stop giving your money to whoever comes along with a hard luck story——"

"I don't!" protested the doctor, twinkling encouragingly.

"Then why wear heavy felt sombreros and thick gray flannels in the Merry Month of May?"

"I'm saving my money."

"You're no miser," I protested.

"But I must save. I owe it to—Berthe."

"Tell me," I demanded gently. "Dear Dr. Willis, tell me why you are depriving yourself of the things you ought to have. Your car! I think you've made up your mind to give that to Nicholas Perry and to trudge the country roads."

"I haven't!" the old doctor broke in. "I've offered to let Nick have it for $300. I know a little old car I can get for that—a very nice car—and I must have one and I can't afford to put [illegible]."

"So you're going to give Nick $3,000 worth of car for $300. Why charge him anything?" I urged in bitter protest against letting this old darling be taken advantage of right and left.

"I've got to save," said the old doctor. "There's Arlette. She wouldn't be here save for me. She is a menace to herself like Rosine, my daughter. She has a voice. She must sing. She must study abroad." He leaned forward eagerly as he asked in the tone of one who stands at the bar of judgment: "Tell me—do you think Rosine can forgive her father—do you think poor Berthe can forgive her—lover—if Arlette—Berthe's grandchild, my grandchild, is given her chance?"

"And you starve and go dressed in old clothes so Arlette can have her chance," was on the tip of my tongue.

But it never got said. For the old man crumpled forward across my table in an inert heap.

I shall never forget my terror then.

Who "they" were didn't matter. The fact that this presumable "they" had no reason to think anything save that the dear old doctor had come to dine with a patient didn't occur to me. I rushed for fresh water, for aromatic, for everything I could lay hands on. And when I touched the doctor and found him warm I was so overjoyed I could hardly move for the palpitating of my heart. He revived after I had given him a little aromatic. And before long he was explaining himself to me apologetically.

It had been a warm day. He wasn't used to walking. He should have changed his flannels. He had eaten so heartily of my delicious dinner. He had a touch of heart trouble. I mustn't concern myself.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

STATISTICS show that American women spend five million dollars a day for cosmetics. This is terrible when you stop to think that over three million dollars worth of it comes off on men's coats.

GIRLS use powder so freely that the fellows have to carry whisk brooms in their hip pockets.

THEY have to stop and brush themselves off between kisses.

IT'S too bad that a man can't spoon without having to clean up.

ONE girl used some rouge that had so much red in it that it burned holes in her sweetheart's collar.

IT got so that he had to wear asbestos neckties.

WHENEVER they sat on the sofa he always held a fire extinguisher in his lap.

HE said he got most of his new burns from an old flame.

THE reason [illegible] prefers a country g[illegible] her rosy cheeks won't [illegible] nature gives [illegible] red spots

ONE woman spent ten thousand dollars on beauty products last year and found out that she was [illegible] anyway.

SHE had a face that only a mother could love, but her mother was out of town.

THIS girl read all the cosmetic advertisements and thought that good looks came in jars.

SHE figured that all she needed to become beautiful with was a can opener.

WHAT can you expect man to do for your face when Nature had to give up?

A Chicago girl said that if she had a million dollars she'd spend it becoming beautiful. That's silly, any woman with a million dollars doesn't have to be beautiful.

BEAUTY is only skin deep and there are thousands of beauty parlors in this country where you can get skinned.

DAILY SHORT STORY

CASTING BREAD UPON WATERS

By Helen St. Bernard

MAIZIE MILLIKEN, until last night a member of the "Broadway Follettes," playing at the Rialto Theatre, Atlantic City, walked slowly down the boardwalk and munched salt-water taffy, peppermint flavored. The sun was bright and warm, offsetting the sharp breeze that swept in from the ocean, breaking the waves into white foam on the sand. Few people were out at this hour shortly before eight. Rows and rows of deserted wheel chairs awaited the promenade hours. The big hotels loomed up against a morning sky of clear azure, and Maizie wondered if behind one of those impressive portals there was not a job that would pay her enough to buy a ticket back to New York. There was just one quarter, bright and shining, in the little scarlet pocketbook that dangled from her arm.

She smiled grimly as she caught her own name on the tattered bulletin that waved in the breeze in front of the closed Rialto. Last night she had led the chorus in singing the so-called latest song-hit.

'We are little givers—brunette, blonde and red.
Giving, always giving—from birth until we're dead.
And the chorus
"Giving, Giving, Giving all the time.

The song was foolish, but, they got it across. In fact, it was the only feature in the entire show that won any applause from the staid audience of first nighters. When the final curtain had descended on an already thinned-out house, the foreseeing manager had mysteriously disappeared with the evening's proceeds.

Maizie had had enough to pay for her night's lodging at a boarding house on a side street. She had hesitated before buying the package of salt-water taffy, but it would have to do for breakfast. The quarter must stay in the little scarlet pocketbook until something turned up, and at this early hour prospects were not very promising for a stranded show girl.

She passed Child's restaurant. A white clad girl was dexterously flapping pancakes in the window. Pancakes, maple syrup and coffee for 25 cents. Maizie closed her eyes and reached for another piece of taffy. She was desperately hungry. Then a sudden happy thought—perhaps she could get a job frying pancakes, or waiting on table, or even washing dishes. Anything to appease that awful emptiness and to get back to New York.

She debated for a moment. Farther down the walk a small group of people had congregated at a railing, seemingly intent on something down below them in the sand. She would stroll down and see what it was all about and in the meantime she would raise the courage to apply for a job—and a breakfast.

She joined the group. The sand artist was at work below them, brown, bareheaded, smiling. Slowly but surely a figure was taking shape in the white mound before him—a child, unkempt, ragged, pathetic, with outstretched hand—and in the background the shadowy suggestion of a guardian angel hovering over her.

Maizie liked the idea, especially of the guardian angel. She felt more cheerful. With a final touch here and there, the artist brushed the sand from his hands and with a stick he wrote in fantastic lettering.

"Cast your bread upon the waters . . . ."

Several coins were being showered down upon the strip of canvas at his feet. He smiled up at his audience with an appeal that fascinated Maizie. Cast your bread upon the waters. . . . Long ago, when Maizie was a child back in the little home town in Indiana, she had learned that lesson in Sunday school and knew what "casting bread upon the waters" meant.

She opened her pocketbook and felt blindly for the quarter, the last cent she had in the world. Her fingers closed over it and as the shining piece went spinning through the air she started to hum—then sing—

"Giving—giving—giving all the time."

A man, stout and red-faced, turned to her quickly with questioning eyes. Then he brought his cane down with a resounding thud.

"Well! Here you are. I've been looking in at every hotel in Atlantic City for you this morning, young lady."

"Really," chirped Maizie. "Odd you didn't find me at the Traymore."

She was accustomed to these advances from middle-aged admirers.

"Traymore—and there wasn't enough money to pay you off last night after the crook lit out," he snorted. "Do you want a job?"

Oh, that awful emptiness in the pit of her stomach. Perhaps he was the manager of a restaurant where they fried pancakes in the window.

"Job?" she queried. "What kind of a job? I'm particular, I am."

For a moment he looked disappointed, heartsick. "Aren't you the blonde that sang that song at the Rialto to last night," he almost pleaded. "Tell me, aren't you—that giving song."

Maizie nodded.

"Well, if you can put over a rotten song like that, you can sure hit the mark with some real stuff. I am opening up tonight. Come to rehearsal at eleven." He motioned with his thumb towards the Coliseum. "I'll depend upon you."

"Casting bread upon the waters," mused Maizie, late of the Broadway Follettes. "I wonder if the artist would mind giving me back that bread I cast upon the waters until . . ."

"What now?" grunted her benefactor. "You've got a job. What more do you want?"

"What more do I want?" and Maizie laid both hands against her empty stomach. "Right now I want pancakes and maple syrup and coffee. Then I'll talk job."

FOXY GRANDPA'S DAILY BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

BOBBY ran up on the diving board, raised his hands above his head, and with his heels close together gave a little spring and dove headlong into the water. But splash went his little tummy, and he came up gasping for breath. When he climbed up on the dock he was rubbing his tummy with both hands and despondently said:

"That one certainly burnt me. I wonder if I'll ever be able to make a decent dive."

"Sure you will," I laughed, patting the boy on the shoulder.

"Well, it seems funny that I can't make a good dive, when a loon can. Do you remember how those loons used to dive up in Canada?"

"But that's their nature, Bobby," I explained. "I don't suppose it's natural for human beings to go diving off high places. They have to learn. You'll just have to practice until you'll get it down fine."

Bunny, who was in my pocket—because he didn't want to get his feet wet on the dock—said:

"You haven't seen the greatest divers in the world yet."

"Who are they — Hawaiians?" asked Bobby, knowing that those people are famous for their remarkable swimming.

"No," he replied. "Some Newfoundlanders that I know of are the best divers in the world."

"I thought the water was too cold up there to go in swimming very much," ventured Bobby.

"Not for these Newfoundlanders," insisted Bunny.

"Well," said Bobby, "Foxy Grandpa has promised to take us to Newfoundland this Summer. You'll show them to me, won't you?"

"If we see any," said Bunny in his most aggravating tone.

We had hardly put our foot on the shore of Newfoundland when Bobby turned to Bunny and said:

"How about those divers you told me you'd show me up here?" I certainly want to see them. I may get some pointers."

"We'll see them," said Bunny, turning and looking across the water.

The next afternoon we walked down to the seashore and there out on the water was a fleet of fishing boats.

"Herring fishermen, I suppose," said I. And just as I spoke we noticed that they were pulling up anchor and preparing to move.

"I guess there are no more fish there," said Bobby, who would have given his right arm to have been out there with them.

"Very probably," murmured Bunny. "But it's my belief that they have had a signal and are changing for that reason. And he lifted his right paw and shaded his eyes as he scanned the stretch of blue water which spread before us.

We stood and waited awhile as the fishermen headed in toward us, and while we were watching them we saw a big bird soaring high up in the sky between the fishing boats and the shore.

It fluttered down near the water, hovered in mid-air for a few minutes and then as straight as an arrow dove headlong into the sea. It remained under the water for a little while and then came up and we could see a fish glistening in its bill as it flapped it's wings and flew inland over our heads.

"Some dive," said Bobby.

"Greatest divers in the world," exclaimed Bunny, "those gannets. They're the Newfoundland divers I was telling you about."

Bobby shook his head in amazement and just then we noticed that the fishermen were anchoring their boats in the very spot where the gannet had made his great dive.

"Very useful birds, too," announced Bunny, "you see those fishermen knew that they were sure to find herring where they saw the gannet dive.

"But why?" asked Bobby, "doesn't it hurt the birds tummy as it did mine?"

"Because," explained Bunny, "he has an air sac in his chest—just like a pneumatic cushion which keeps him from being hurt."

"I'm going to invent one for boys," said Bobby very seriously.

Skin so sore could not touch it
Resinol heals

Seven Mile, Ohio, Feb. 13:—"I am a farmer and am out-of-doors all my working hours. During harvest time last year, I became badly sunburned about the face, neck and arms. They were so irritated and pained so intensely I could hardly stand anything touching them. I tried various remedies, but nothing did me any good until I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. I was relieved by the first application and by the time the first jar of ointment and cake of soap were gone my sunburn had vanished. I am always a booster for Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment." A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

DOES anybody remember the old-fashioned girl who used to go home and wash her mouth with soap, after the wrong man had kissed her?

* * *

When a woman "puts a man out of her life," she usually leaves the door unlatched, hoping that he will sneak back in again when she isn't looking.

* * *

Woman may not be as original as man; but the playwrights and fashion artists would find the world a pretty dull place, if Eve had not discovered "sex-appeal," and invented clothes.

* * *

Most men, these days, take merely a casual interest in a kiss, a sporting interest in love, and an academic interest in marriage.

* * *

Some men are born brilliant talkers, others acquire the art; and others simply know enough to say, "How-pretty-you - look - I-adore-you-in-that-dress - what - is-that-fascinating-scent-you-use," and pass as brilliant conversationalists.

* * *

When you try to convince a man that he is the "handsomest, cleverest, noblest being on earth," he may demur a little at first; but he will finally let you have your way about it.

* * *

A little love, like a little knowledge, is a dangerous thing. It is only when they come in wholesale quantities, that they are worth sitting up evenings, to cultivate.

* * *

Oh yes, it is wonderful what love will do for a man! It will sometimes make him think of something besides himself, for a whole afternoon!

* * *

The problem that bothers a man, about this time of year, is not whether it is possible to love two women at once—but whether it is possible to love ONLY two.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

OH, sometimes near is far away and sometimes far is near; who knows upon what roads we stray when others think us here? Who knows just where the pathways wind whereon we love to tread, or what of loveliness we find that seemed long spent and fled? Oh, sometimes near is very far; the eyes that smile in mine may be as distant as a star against the sunset's wine. The house across the way may be girt round with barriers grim, removed by life or destiny as far as Earth's last rim. And sometimes far is very near; across wide lands and seas the heart can feel a presence dear, can sense loved melodies. And so it is man have no fear, but wander where they will; the sea and deserts are not drear, for love goes with them still.

COOK-COOS

by Ted Cook

New England inventor has perfected a home device with which women can weave their own stockings "by simply turning a crank."

Probably like a sausage grinder.

To make wood-pulp silk stockings, mother saws a leg off the piano and throws it in the hopper.

* * *

Conversation in the year 1930:

HUSBAND—Isn't there a toothpick in the house?

WIFE—I used the last one this morning, dearie, to make a bathing suit.

* * *

Height of affluence will be attained by the matron who buys hand-carved olive wood twin beds to make herself a pair of stockings.

* * *

BRIDESMAID—And where, dearie, did you get the lovely chemise?

BRIDE—Mother made it from our ancestral grandfather's clock.

* * *

What this country needs is a simple turn-the-crank device with which working girls can make their own chewing gum.

* * *

* * *

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT OF IT

This is Camembert X. McHosenozzle, famous French perfumeur, who is said to be the man who first manufactured and sold Florida water. Miami real estaters plan to erect a statue in his honor.

TODAY'S NEWS PICTURE

Has filmland's most beautiful romance been blasted? Friends of Pola Negri and Rudolph Valentino point to the above picture—their lips tremble, and then they turn aside, unable to control their emotions. For, as the picture plainly shows, Mr. Valentino is nowhere to be seen. When asked to deny or confirm the report that she had tossed Valentino aside, Miss Negri merely honked the horn and drove away, leaving a large crowd that had surrounded the reporter speechless.

Adam Scofflaw's Journal

Up at nine of the clock, which is the hour I am now resolved to rise at, and cannot lay hand on a stocking but is out, both toe and heel. Lord! Such cony-patch doth vex me beyond anything else in the world. And when I cry out against it my dove shed crocodile tears and wring her hands and circumslogdologize. Poor, sorry wretch! I did holde my tongue and temper mighty brave and sit twiddling of thumbs, albeit my hand doth now shake to write it.

EXPORT CLUB IS WORKING TO AID BOSTON

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Victor M. Cutter

New England Export Club, of which Victor M. Cutter, Newton, head of the great United Fruit Company, is leader, is a young organization, but it is doing good work to aid the port of Boston. It is affiliated with the Chamber of Commerce and was organized about a year ago.

• • •

Today is has a membership of more than 100 export executives, representative of many New England industries. Each of the New England States is represented by a vice-president. Purposes of the organization are to provide a medium for the interchange of experience and suggestions and to assist executives to find markets for their goods abroad. The club also acts as host to foreign buyers coming to Boston, provides a bulletin service for members. It investigates complaints from shippers with regard to export facilities.

• • •

Following are trade advisors: Machinery, J. H. Connor, vice-president, United Shoe Machinery Company; textiles, E. B. Filsinger, export manager, Lawrence & Company; boots and shoes, E. A. Keith, export manager, George E. Keith Company; rubber products, C. J. Mooney, export manager, Firestone Apsley Rubber Company; paper products, V. E. Parmenter, export manager; Dennison Manufacturing Company; specialties, T. W. Pelham, sales manager, Gillette Safety Razor Company; commercial, C. D. New comes an opportunity for a supreme home location. A part of the Bussey Estate from 1806; Thomas Motley's home from 1842, and since 1871 part of the Bussey Institute (Arnold Arboretum) and thus for eighty-odd years a HARVARD COLLEGE HOLDING!

While thus held, unpurchasable, West Roxbury has developed all about it, as the "New Brookline," protected by the new zoning laws from the commercial and apartment house invasion which destroyed Brookline supremacy. Forgetting How to Walk

"Call a Taxi!" No Slogan for Shoemakers

One of the four nationally-known shoe organizations with big factories in Rockland announces that it will begin a "new run," late in June, with MORE ORDERS ON HAND THAN AT ANY TIME SINCE THE FACTORY WAS OPENED."

The present run of shoemaking will come to an end on the 12th, but this year the halt will only be long enough to take an inventory. Then—full speed ahead!

One trouble with the shoe industry, some of the experts say, is that men are "riding more and walking less." In the first quarter of the present year, women called for 26,700,000 pairs of shoes, or 600,000 pairs MORE than their requirement in the corresponding quarter of 1925. Men took 20,900,000 pairs, which was 1,500,000 pairs FEWER than their order last year.

The men of Uncle Sam's big family will have to stir themselves before the trade in men's shoes becomes as brisk as the manufacturer would like to see it. Meanwhile, we can be grateful for the good news from Rockland, which shows that men ARE wearing shoes and that many men want GOOD shoes.

Game to the Backbone

The Bay State Sends a MAN to West Point

If you keep in your scrapbook a list of "young men to watch," please write down the name of Clement Van Buren Sawin, and thirty years from now, if you happen to be around, look "Clem" up and see what he has been doing. If, in the meantime, our Uncle Samuel has serious trouble anywhere, you may not have to look him up; the chances are you will know all about him.

Clement lives in Fairhaven, native town of Henry H. Rogers of Standard Oil fame, across the Acushnet from New Bedford.

He was ambitious to enter the United States Military Academy at West Point and on the strength of an exceptional high school record Congressman Charles L. Gifford gave him an appointment. A slight PHYSICAL defect barred the way.

Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of other lads have been kept out of West Point for the same reason and have turned their thoughts in other directions, but young Sawin is not that sort of soldierman. HE enlisted in the Regular Army, was sent to the Army school at Fort Dunning, Ga., completed the course there, was named AGAIN for West Point and upon a second physical examination is found to be of exactly the type the Army wants.

And With It a Useful Lesson for Young People

Rubens and Van Dyck, both great artists, are supposed to have worked together on this picture, only recently discovered.

Rubens painted a great deal of trash, particularly when he painted to order for French royalty. Much of that trash is on the walls of the Louvre in Paris now. But his crucifixion of St. Peter is magnificent, and in painting this picture he and Van Dyck were in earnest.

Their idea was to show the young artists that TIME, history, the wisdom of older people, could help and guide them.

How much this picture is worth in dollars nobody knows. It was found, covered with dirt, behind the bathroom door of a house in a London suburb.

Someone, unable to realize its value, had put it there and forgotten it.

Whatever the picture may be worth in cash, its lesson for young men and women of today is worth much more. There is a tendency among our young people to scorn the value of experience, the knowledge of older people. Our youth feels that its task is to teach the old instead of learning from the old.

Age may be slow, BUT IT KNOWS. Lincoln did his great work when the task came to him. He learned by listening to OLDER men. And, as he testified, he learned from old books, the few that he had read.

Young people come upon the earth, new, without experience or knowledge. They have DESIRES, and mistake them for WISDOM.

That is the mistake that keeps thousands of them from the very thing that they desire, namely, SUCCESS AND THE RESPECT OF OTHERS.

GOOD ROADS HELP TO PROSPERITY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IT is said that Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota have on foot road building projects that will cost more than $200,000,000 when the work is completed.

One of the most important transformations that have taken place in the Middle West has been the improvement of its roads. Road making has been found essential to prosperity in business, as one of the principal elements in business is transportation.

News comes from Indiana that in addition to billions of dollars already spent in building a great system of highways, approximately a billion more is now being expended for the same purpose. Over the thousands of miles of hard surface roads that have resulted there move literally millions of motor vehicles. At first these were almost exclusively pleasure motors, but the motor truck and the motor bus are now making their appearance and helping to increase the rural population.

Many motor busses are carrying millions of passengers annually, and not long ago there was opened in the city of Indianapolis a large terminal out of which six motor bus companies operate seventeen different lines.

No scheme could be proposed that would add to the attractiveness of life in the country than that of providing good roads. Already seventy per cent. of the State road system is covered by bus lines.

Some time ago a report of the State highways records of Indiana showed that there were 171 different companies or individuals operating 218 bus lines in that State. As more hard surface roads are constructed, more trucks, more terminals and more efficient operation will be provided.

An important element in the prosperity of any community consists in the excellence of its roads. One of the most attractive things in Southern California is the abundance and extent of the good roads.

WHEN SPRINGTIME USHERS IN FAMILY DISPUTES

Those who have made it a study say that there are more family disagreements in the Spring than at any other time of the year.

Nerves are on edge by previous social demands or because of the shut-in program which a long, cold Winter has brought about.

There is an uneasiness because Spring does not come with a rush and agreeable weather settle down immediately after Easter.

The husband is dreading the demands and planning to escape cleaning.

The children are restless or listless and want to be out of doors. They insist upon wearing fewer clothes and parents know the dangers of the damp ground and scanty clothing in unsettled weather.

It is a trying time all around.

But perhaps there is nothing which causes so many hot words as the changing around of the furniture in the home.

Particularly is this true of the special nook that the man of the home considers his.

A man wants changes in almost anything else, but he never tires of the chair that just suits him, and the location of that chair where he wants it.

Home is the place for comfort and peace and rest.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

CAROLINE HOWARD doesn't like this column.

"Why are you always talking about such queer people and unhappy situations?" she protests. "I'm sure the world isn't really like that. There are lots of perfectly happy, contented people. I am, for one. Of course, my husband and I would like a little more money, but that isn't really unhappiness. We enjoy every minute and so do our children."

Then Caroline goes on to tell us more about her highly satisfactory lot. She is thirty-five, in splendid health and not so hard to look at. Her husband is thirty-eight, healthy and equally easy on the eye. He has a nice, lively real estate business. They have two children—Junior, aged twelve, and Constance, aged nine. Barring the fact that they have both had their adenoids out life has been one long dream of bliss for the young Howards.

They live in a nice home in the prettiest part of town. As both Caroline and her husband were born in this city they have retained their childhood circle of acquaintances. Their respective families live near them and are a good natured, friendly lot. The Howards have no debts they cannot pay, no scandals they are forced to hide, no ambitions they cannot hope to gratify, no enemies.

"I suppose you'd say that we're an exception, but I am sure we're not," concludes Constance. "We are just an average American family and WE'RE PERFECTLY HAPPY!"

You're "perfectly happy."

THEN YOU OUGHT TO BE ASHAMED OF YOURSELF.

No one of adult years and mature consciousness has a right to be "perfectly happy" in this world today.

Tolstoy has said that until the age of thirty an intelligent man is, by force of necessity, concerned with purely personal problems, but after that age he concerns himself with the problems of the world in which he lives.

Plenty to Stir One

And indeed it would seem that only a slug could remain unconcerned with the conditions of our present world.

I am an optimist. I believe that we are coming out all right in the end. But never has the going been rougher nor the goal more obscured.

This big rich country of ours has money—yes. But a part of that money is earned by the toil of little children. Can YOU be happy in the face of that?

We have the most comfortable housing in the world—yes. But an appalling percentage of the families in those houses are wrecked on the rocks of the divorce courts. Can YOU be happy in the face of that?

We have more automobiles per capita than any other country in the world—yes. But we also have men standing ten deep in city streets—shivering in the cold—fainting in the streets—looking for jobs and there are no jobs. Can YOU be happy in the face of that?

Can't Blame Youth

We have the bonniest crop of youngsters in all the world and we do more for our youngsters than any other people—yes. But a tragic majority of those children are growing up with no gods but their bellies and their dancing heels. It isn't their fault. It's the fault of a nation whose gods have crumbled and whose new gods are as yet half baked. So our children grope wildly in a perilous, darkened freedom. Can YOU be happy in the face of that?

In every department of our life confusion reigns—in our homes, in industry, in the church, in education, in our politics and amusements. There's something inspiring about that confusion in spite of tragedies it works. It's a challenge to all that is brave and noble in the heart of humanity. And I truly believe we'll clear the mess up some day. But, in the meantime, can YOU sit down in the fullness of your strength and prosperity and say your're "perfectly content"?

'You Said It, Marceline!'

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "APPRECIATING AN ACCESSORY"

SOME HUSBANDS TRY TO GIVE THEIR WIVES
EVERYTHING they can
To make them HAPPY.
And SOME wives are GRATEFUL,
Though NOT MANY
Will ADMIT IT.
OTHER wives don't know.
HOW to be grateful;
BECAUSE when they
LOOK at their husbands
They CANNOT SEE what
On earth there is to Be grateful FOR.
WELL, nobody admires
AN UMBRELLA on a SUNNY DAY, but
There's many a girl
Who was GLAD she HAD ONE when
She got CAUGHT
In a SHOWER;
And anything that does
Us a GOOD TURN
Should be APPRECIATED.
A HUSBAND, after all,
Should not be an ACCESSORY
AFTER the fact, HE Should be THE FACT!

SWEDENBORG WAS AN ORIGINAL THINKER

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

MADAME GALLI-CURCI, the singer, ascribes her success [illegible] to the influence that Emanuel Swedenborg's writings have exercised over her.

She says she has read them all, and that from them she has learned the power that comes from the effacement of self in the performance of one's work. It is a high ideal, and one not easily attained in its fullness. That is gives spiritual strength is the testimony of many eminent persons.

It is a subject of practical interest that might well occupy the attention of modern psychologists. Why is one most successful when he thinks least of himself? Probably because thinking of oneself is an extremely distracting occupation.

It is like looking in a mirror instead of looking at what you have to do. That an artist should find inspiration in Swedenborg's moral teachings may be surprising to some, but not to everybody.

Few men in any century have exercised a more powerful influence over their contemporaries, or sent a stronger reflection of themselves into coming times than this remarkable Swede, whom one encyclopedia calls simply "a theologian" and another a "scientist, philosopher and mystic"; one biographical dictionary a "naturalist, mathematician and theosophist" another "a man of revelations and strange visions," and a third only "an enthusiast."

Original Thinker

He was all of these things, and above them all he was an original thinker. He had a double type of mind. There are two principal mental types—the scientific and the mystic—and in their extreme forms they cannot understand one another. That in Swedenborg the two types existed amicably together is shown by what he did. His first originality was that, though the son of a bishop and a professor of theology, he was of a very pious disposition.

Graduated from the University of Upsala, he took up natural philosophy and became celebrated as a mathematician, an engineer, an inventor, a metallurgist, a political economist, a palaeontologist and a physicist in all the branches of that science.

He showed his originality again when he told the University of Upsala, which wanted him for professor of mathematics, that it was a mistake for mathematicians to be limited to theory. He ought to have come in our time.

But the greatest proof of his originality is that there is hardly a main feature of modern scientific advance that he did not foresee. Brought back to life today he would not be a whit amazed by our discoveries and theories about the origin and nature of the sun, the planets, the stars and the universe, for he himself worked out a nebular theory. He would say, "I told you so," when he beheld aeroplanes traversing the atmosphere as freely as birds.

He, in the beginning of the eighteenth century, insistently predicted, on the basis of his own experiments, and that of what a mere inspection of nature's flying creatures suggested, that human flight would surely be achieved. On the other hand, at the beginning of the twentieth century, one of the greatest theoretical mathematicians then living, deliberately wrote:

A Powerful Teacher.

"The demonstration that no possible combination of known substances, known forms of machinery, and known forms of force can be united in a practicable machine by which men shall fly long distances through the air, seems to the writer as complete as it is possible for any physical fact to be!"

Only two years after that was written the Wright brothers were flying! But two hundred years before, Swedenborg had said it was a mistake for mathematicians to be limited to theory.

And this great scientific and philosophic thinker, experimenter, and inventor, was also one of the most powerful teachers of the existence of a spiritual nature in man and above man. It has been affirmed that it was only in his dotage that Swedenborg turned to these things.

But read what he himself says, speaking of his boyhood: "I often revealed things in my discourse which filled my parents with astonishment and made them declare at times that certainly the angel spoke through my mouth."

His visions may have been chimeras, but his philosophy of life was so sound, that as we see, it may sustain artistes in their work on the stage as well as savants in their researches into nature's secrets, and all men in their hope for better things.
